But the Number Employed Remains Unchanged—Stock Market Has Year's Third Biggest Loss

By EDWARD COWAN

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5-The Labor Department reported today that unemployment remained on a bigh plateau in October, edging up from 7.8 to 7.9 percent. and there was no gain in employment.

The monthly labor force report lacked these moves to obtain the removal of ecoa single significant bright spot. But noinomic sanctions and an international conther dld it contain any sign of serious deterioration. In a candid assessment of the national-

The 7.9 percent national unemployst delegations taking part in the talks, ment rate was a return to the August level from 7.8 percent in September. The number of persons unemployed, adjusted to account for normal seasonal swings, stood at 7,569,000 last month, up 185,000 to black political participation said, all from September.

The unemployment rate and the total number of people out of work bave been essectially unchanged since July.

The number of persons with jobs, 87.8 million, was also basically unchanged.

Wall Street analysts said the unemployment figures, as well as uncertainties about policies to be followed by the Jimmy Carter administration, contributed to the stock market's third sharpest loss of the year today. The Dow Jooes industrial average plummeted 17.37 points to close at 943.07 on a volume of more than 20 million shares. [Page 27.]

2 Key Issues for Carter The jobless figures, together with yesterday's report of a 1 percent rise in industrial prices in October, underscored two major policy issues before Mr. Carter and his advisers. They are the following:

Will the recovery resume, and when and bow strongly? SHow can the Government apply fresh timulus to the economy without causing

Ron Nessen, press secretary to Presideot Ford, speaking about the unemploymeot figures with more candor than would have been expected before the election, said, "The pause seems to be lasting longer than we anticipated." A City of Private Lives

Today it seems to be a city of private lives, led in quiet resignation. The pal-aces on the Elbe River are balf-reconstructed, half-ruined, and in what used to be the commercial center, the Pra-gerstrasse, massive, rectangular blocks of modern apartments seem lost among yawning empty spaces cleared of

Mr. Lobel saw which way the wind was blowing in 1945 when the Soviet Army marched into the rubble, and he joined the East German Communist Party the following year, when he was 21 years old.

"We rebuilt the city stone by stone, with our own hands," be says, "and were proud of what we did, but we never could have done it without the help of the Soviet people."

What be has achieved in the tiny apartment—a small bedroom almost filled by the double bed, a living room dominated by an enormous, antique television-radio set and a bathroom he shows off for its washing machine and dryer—is material comfort to dull the memory of the years of chaos right after 1945.

Brings Home $95 a Week

He seems to want for nothing. "I'm happy with my job," he says. "I bave work, no worries, and that's all I want." He brings home $95 a week and pays only $7 a week in rent, including heat and hot water.

Another Dresdner, not a party member but also content with his life, says: The materialistic middle-class mentality is even worse bere than it is in tality is even worse here than it is in West Germany. People want their comfort, and they tune out everything else. The state is so all-pervasive that all they want is to be left alone."

the rubble and restoring architectural monuments. The castle of the Dukes of Saxony is still a scarred rush. The 19th-century Reoaissance-style Opera House, designed by Gottfried Samper, has been an empty shell since the night the bombs fell.

The destruction was so heavy said the city architect, Heinz Michalk, "that some people thought the city shouldn't be rebuilt at all. Others wanted to sweep away the ruins and create something completely different. We compromised by maintaining the baroque buildings around the castle and using a modern socialist style for the area outside."

In the Herbert Bochow High School, a modern building in a new town out-sida the central city, the halls are decorated with children's drawings of So-viet space achievements and a series of collages illustrating "the great friendship of the German Democratic Republic and the Soviet Union."

The new Dresden is a city of careful people. But some things have not changed. High on the hills of the north , in Oberloschwitz, there is a neighborhood of spacious 19th-century private houses and elegant gardens that belonged to the rich and privileged.

It is still that way. The opera singer Peter Schreier lives there, as does Rainer Kunad, a 40-year-old composer who has the privilege of travel from East Germany to the West, something most citizens are denied.

Palestinians here are also aware of what they see as a Syrian-encouraged! move to enlarge the membership of the Palestine National Council at next month's meeting in Cairo. The enlarge-ment is seen by Palestinians here, and by some interviewed recently in Damascus, as an attempt to dilute Mr. Arafat's strength in the organization.

The former Executive Committee member groups that have long been at odds with Mr. Arafat, including the group headed by Dr. George Habash and the factions supported by Iraq and Syria are not expected to attend the Executive Committee sessions.

So Mr. Arafat's task at the Executive Committee meeting and the couocil session, remains one of persuading powerful Palestinians that while they have lost on the battlefield to Syria, they must cootinue under his leadership to seek the crea tion of an Independent Palestinian state

But his task is complicated by the fact that now more than ever, Syria and its anti-Palestinian ally, King Husseln of Jor-dan, are in a position to deal with Israel by offering guarantees of firmer Arab control over the Palestinians.

Mr. Suarez, who seeks to portray himself as an arbiter between left and right, is apparently receptive to an idea taking shape in opposition circles of a "committee of personalities" that would meet with him to discuss ground rules for the election. British Labor Government To Stay Despite Setbacks

LONDON, Nov. 5 (Reuters)-Britain's Labor Government, beset by the country's worst economic crisis since the depressioo of the 1930's, voted today to carry on despite a severe setback in three spe-

Peking Denies Aides Spoke Of Trial for 4 Leftists

The Globe and Mail, Turonto PEKING, Saturday, Nov. 6—An official Chinese spokesman yesterday denied reports that Chinese officials told vissing foreigners earlier this week that the widow of Mao Tse-tung and three other radicals would be put on trial for plotting a coup.

Wall posters had previously revealed that an official investigation commission had been formed to investigate the activi-ties of the four purged radicals. However. news reports vesterday quoted members of a Finoish delegation as saying that they had been told by Chinese officials that the investigation would be followed by a trial of the four.

Responding to queries about the re ports, the spokesmen declared yesterday that no one said the four would be put on trial. He would not go further and categorically rule out a trial. "Though we have to say the reaction of Congress next spring is something we cannot predict." the official said. "We would regret it if our security interests are damaged."

Because there were differences of opinion even within the delegation over what the Chinese officials had actually said. it seemed possible that there had been a language problem and that the words investigation and trial were confused,

Many diplomats here believe the matter is at most a controversy over legal nice-ties. They feel the iovestigatory commission is charged with building the case against the four radicals and recommending punishment, which Chinese officials have already indicated will be incarcera-tion for life. IMING OF 3 DEBATES

Carter's Pollster Says That They Interrupted Campaign at Points 器 When Ford Was Gaining

By WARREN WEAVER Jr.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5—The Presidenial debates helped Jimmy Carter win the election because they interrupted the campaign at three critical times when President Ford was gaining on his Demo-cratic rival, Patrick H. Caddell, the Carter pollster, said today.

Each debate, independent of who won or lost, served the practical purpose of postponing a decision by uncertain voters who hoped that the televised joint appearances would help make up their minds, Mr. Caddell told a function meeting of the Washington Press Club.
On each of the three occasions, Democratic polls showed that President Ford was "closing on" Mr. Carter, so that an interruption was welcome to the Democratic forces, he said. At the same time, Mr. Caddell said, the debates helped voters choose between the Democratic "risk" and the "safe" Republican.

"Our survey showed that voters, by a 47-to-33 margin, believed that Bob Dole was not qualified to be President and were worried over that belief," he said. Mr. Caddell maintained that the "quirky closeness" of the electoral vote system had minimized the size of the Carter victory. Ordinarily, he said, a popular vote margin of three percentage points would result in an electoral vote margin of victory in four Southern South National March 18 and South Result of the South than out in larger numbers in the South t a crude manner in this Bicentennial year is, I think, most insensitive and very foolish," said Miss de Havilland, who was nominated for an Academy Award for her performance as Melanie Hamilton in the screen classic.

At one point Miss de Havilland was to have introduced the movie to television audiences, who will see it Sunday and Monday nights, but she said that she had withdrawn because of the network's plans to spot the movie with commercials and aplit it at a point beyond intermission called for when it was shown in theaters. "I'm quite sure that Clark Gable, Vivien Leigh, and Leslie Howard are up there somewhere right now incensed over the proceed-ings," said Miss de Havilland.

James S. Martin, Jr., manager of the Viking project for the National Aero-nautics and Space Administration, will resign io mid-December to become vice president for advanced programs and planning for Martin Marietta Aerospace in Bethesda, Md. Martin Marietta was the prime contractor for the Viking project at the NASA Langley Research Ceoter in Hampton, Va. Mr. Martin was a major contributor to the successful Viking program to send an unmanned spacecraft to the planet Mars.

According to the Rev. Sylvester Fowler, pastor of Saints Pentecostal in Baltimore, one night last August he had a vivid dream in which a newspaper vendor handed him a Maryland lottery ticket. He told the man he had not asked for the ticket.
Mr. Fowler said, but the man in the dream said, "It's there, take it." Mr.
Fowler told the story to a dream analyst, he said, and be was told to buy a lottery ticket. He did as he was bade, he said, and this week he won $177,600 in Maryland's bonus lottery. And that, folks, is indeed the "stuff as dreams are made on."

Howard H. Baker Jr., Republican of Tennessee, are co-chairmen of a group assigned to look into proposed sales of nuclear power plants to Israel, Egypt and Iran.

The six-member delegation en route to mainland China, led by Senator Carl T. Curtis, Republicao of Nebraska, was named by Presideot Ford in response to an invitation from the Chinese Govern-

In 1967, this reviewer was won over by the poise and musicality of Joyce Mathis when the then 22-year-old soprano from Chattantoga sang a couple of arias with a youth orchestra here. She was highly acclaimed at her debut two years later, and spent several successful seasons under the aegus of Young Concert Artists. Since then, she has appeared with a number of orchestras and has attraced the sponsorship of such no-tables as Leontyoe Price, Ned Rorem and Alvin Ailey, but the major career prophesized for her has not yet ma-

At Alice Tully Hall, where Miss Mathis gave a well-attended, enthu-siastically received recital Thursday evening, there were planty or seasons in renew the predictions of success, although they have to be tempered by consternation at some vocal problems that should have been solved by now.

Miss Mathis continues to be a striking figure on stage: she projects inten-sity and warmth, she sings with extraordinary sensitivity to the mingling of poetic and musical values, and, especially io quiet moments, her voice takes on a pearly smooth silkiness that is quite irresistible. In her opening brace of Bach arias.

however, Miss Mathis's tone frequently took on a brittle, slightly breathless quality and she was not altogether secure in her negotiations of the colo-ratura passages. A Meodelssohn soog group had many lovely moments, but also those, especially at higher volume, where the sound became grainy or went a little out of focus.

After intermission, the soprano stepped into an altogether different and perhaps more compatible repertory, and her triumph was unqualified. Foremost was the spellbinding premiere of Women's Voices," a 23-minute cycle Miss Mathis had commissioned from Mr. Rorem. The music to these 11 songs, probing women's anger, joy. love and anguish—as set down by poets of five centuries-is consistently compelling; and the evocative performance by Miss Mathis superbly accentuated its shifting dramatic moods. The virtuoso piano part—no mere accom-paniment here—was admirably played by Warren Wilson and Mr. Rorem was present to share the extended applause.

Four spirituals closed the program on a note of radiance. ROBERT SHERMAN

Recital: Joyce Mathis in Premiere of Rorem Work Suspect Held in Rape of Woman In Elevator of W. 14th St. Building

A 30-year-old Bronx man was arrested last night and charged with raping and robbing a 26-year-old mother of four in the elevator of a Manhattan office building, the police reported.

The suspect was identified as Jaun Rivera of 1785 Story Avenue in the Bronx. He was seized near the second-iloor elevator of 14 West 17th Street, where he had allegedly assaulted the woman. People working in nearby offices around 6 P.M. heard the woman scream-ing and called the police. When they arrived, the suspect displayed a plastic toy gun that he had appmently used to frighten his victim. He was quickly subdued in a brief struggle, the police said.

* By HAROLD C. SCHONBERG

Let's say it right off: the Metropolitan Opera has produced a beautiful new "Lobengrin." About 10 years ago there was a production that used most of the neo-Bayreuth clichés, but that never did work very well, and a new look at the Wagner opera was mandatory. This time the Metropolitan Opear used August Everding as director. Ming Cho Lee as set designer and Peter J. Hall as customer. The results, unveiled Thursday night, constitute the most striking "Lohengrin" ever to be seen in New York.

Most of it is realistic, with some deft stylisms. The prevailing mood is rather dark except for the sequences in which Lobengrin participates. He makes his entrance in a cloud of golden glory, and gold follows him everywhere. There is no swan at his entrance of departure, incidentally, only some faint beating shadows. Everybody today is still somewhat ashamed of the Wagner menagerie.

The first scene, on the banks of the river, has a black background, a ramp to the shore, reeds, a dock from which King Henry makes his pronouncement, a group of well-equipped soldiers. Muted lighting is used to skillful effect. The duel between Lohengrin and Telramuno has none of the posturing and fake thrusts hitherto seen. Mr. Everding looks on it as a conflict between good and evil, and all Loheogrin does is present the hilt of his sword to his foe, who collapses at the sign of the cross.

In the second act there is merely a looming stone-like facade stretching across the stage. It is simple and effective. The cathedral scene is full of brilliant panoply. This is grand opera and the Metropolitan at its best. Theo there is the richness of the bridal chamber scene, done in good taste, full of effective directorial touches. One such occurs when Lohengrin sad-ly removes the wedding ring from Elsa's finger. There is something of utter finality in the way it is done.

Just as the production is one of the triumphs of recent Metropolitan Opera seasons, the performance also is for-tunately of high calibre. And this de-spite some spotty vocalism here and

Pilar Lorengar sang her first Elsa at the Metropolitan, and had trouble set-tling down. For a long time her singing was wobbly. Finally she managed to get her voice under control and give some lyric phrases in the duet with Ortrud. But at best bers is primarily a lyric voice, and it does not have the volume for Elsa. When Miss Lorengar

Solid Dances By Rudy Perez The Cast opera in three acis by Richard Wagner, e composer. Conducted by James Levine. August Everaling, Sets designed by Aling costumes by J. Hall, Presented by the Display Talent

Rudy Perez's dances have the solid chunky look of well-chiseled stone blocks. They have no particular sinuousness but force us to look at their minimal styling and enjoy it for its own special grace. His company's program at the American Theater Laboratory on Thursday evening was a small retrospective of his work starting with the early 1960's.

Among his most skillful pieces hava been a series of solo dances including the early "Countdown." It is a dance of simple reaching gestures, a few props including a cigarette and some tearlike streaks drawn down his cheeks. They add up to a moving tribute of farewell that is even more remarkable in that the dancer never moves from the spot in which he be-

The piece represents one of the most successful of the "nonmovement" dances that caused such consternation when they first appeared. Today it looks like the vintage treasure it is.

"Coverage," a portrait of a bard-hat worker beset by private turnoil, has the lean strength of Mr. Perez's best works. Ha bas always been concerned works. Ha has always been concerned with fixing certain images in the mind rather than dazzling one with a musical flow, and the picture of his beset worker listening to "God Bless America" and removing his protectiva cap to place it protectively in front of his groin remains indelibly fixed in

Harry Streep 3d, taking Mr. Perez's original role, partnered Leslie Korval in Take Your Alligator With You." a study based on fashion photography poses. Miss Korval was good and Mr. Streep pleasently vacuous as the attentive male. They scarcely had time for each other as they directed all their energy toward the invisible

Since the alligator clothing campaign is no longer running, reference was made to other more current advertisements that seemed a little irrelevant. Perhaps it was so much of its time that the piece really doesn't bave currency any longer.

The quartet "Update" is an abstract movement study that has moments, but too few of them to be really interesting. Katherine Liepe looked excellent among the group that included karen Goodman, Miss Korval and Mr. Streep. DON MCDONAGH

KALAMAZOO, Mich., Nov. 5 (AP)-Federal District Judge Noel P. Fox ordered the State of Michigan today to pay more than $350,000 in plaintiff's attorneys' fees incurred in Kalamazoo's school desegregation case.

The order does not affect a $150,000 settlement reached out of court last year involving the plaintiff, the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, and the Kalamazoo Board of Education.

The local school board was a co-defendant with the State Board of Educa-tion and the State Superintendent of Pubic Instruction in the suit, filed in August 1971 after the Kalamazoo board voted to rescind its own May 1971 school desegregation plan.

The N.A.A.C.P. fought the board's decision in the United States Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit and the Su-preme Court from August 1971 until December 1974. It eventually won desegregation in all grades of the 15,000-student Kalamazoo district.

Sextet at Michael's Pub Is Made Up of Old Hands From Celebrated Bands

Some strong winds from the swing era are blowing through Michael's Pub this month. A sextet that includes veterans of several celebrated big bands—Buck Clayton and Earle Warren of the original Count Basie Band, Milt Hinton and Panama Francis of Cab Calloway's Band and Harold Ashby of Duke Ellington's orches-tra—is playing with a freewheeling verve reminiscent of some of the lively combos that could be beard on 52d Street when the block between Fifth and Sixth Avenues was known as Swing Alley.

The vital spark in this group is Mr. Warren, whose alto saxophone provides the same strong lead for the sextet that it once did for the full Basic band and whose solos have a joyous, lighthearted sparkle. Mr. Ashby's tenor saxophone is sparkle. Mr. Ashby's tenor saxophone is a darker, more sardonic balance, swept along on the strong rhythmic foundation of Mr. Hinton's bass, Mr. Francis's drum-ming and Red Richards on piano. Mr. Richards, who has spent a large part of his career in Dixieland and traditionalist bands, opens up in this setting with some unexpectedly strong performances. Mr. Clayton, the nominal leader of the group, is working his way back from a long period of enforced inactivity. His trumpet tone is rough and sometimes a bit uncertain, but he is carried along by the close, effective support of Mr. Warren and Mr. Ashby. JOHN S. WILSON

Thereafter the movie records without comment some of the more bizarre details of the legendary career-how Sarah had a noble-

every performance in gold. There are ups and downs in her career and Mr. Fleischer and Miss Jack-son, without offering us tangible proof, ask us to believe the divine Sarah was the greatest actress of her century. Most publicized, maybe, but greatest? We have only the words of the screenplay to go on. We are shown bits and pieces of Eernhardt performances in "Le Passant," "Phedre," "La Dame aux Camélias" and "King Lear," in all of which Miss Jackson behaves more like Miss Jackson doing educational television than the most startling, most galvanizing actress of her age. No one makes any attempt to recapture the particular Bernhardt style that, some years later, prompted George Bernard Shaw to write several of his most scathing notices as he compared Bernhardt with Duse-very unfavorably.

"The Incredible Sarah" is an incredibly low-brow variation on the story of the actress who must make horrendous personal sacrifices in the name of her art. Considering the lightweight dopiness of the men around Sarah, though, the sacrifices are not all that great. Daniel Massey plays the admiring Sardou, less as a successful playwright that as the hair-dressing member of an actress's entourage. John Castle, who is the fellow Sarah marries, plays a very bad actor badly. Without exception, all the men in the cast are awful. Miss Jackson is never uninteresting to watch, but her best mo-ments — and I'm not kidding arc her curtain calls, when, exhausted, somewhat dazed, she stands in front of the curtain to acknowledge her audience. One recognizes a real actress even if the bows, considering the movie that contains them, are unseemly.

Yet if one looks at the dance scene today, it is clear that chiffon has made a comeback-not only oa the ballet stage, but in the revival of dances about and by Isadora Duncan, St. Denis's co-matriarch of modern dance, This is why the lyric studies by

St. Denis and her pupils that made up the music visualizations on this program looked so up to date. Perhaps these dances are naïve, but many of today's are neo-naïve. It is clear that the originals have their own integrity, as in the sweetness of the three young girls in "Second Arabesque" to Debussy, Anne-Marie Hackett's ecstatic performance of Miss Pinska's adaptation of Miss Humphrey's 1920 "Dance in Space," in which a raspiterry scarf coils through the air like a Chinese riobon.

Laurie Kaplan, Maggy Gorrill and Nancy Colahan gave St. Denis's "Brahms Waltzes" a revealing clarity. Miss Colahan's solo with its occasional resemblance to the Waltz and Prelude of "Les Sylph-ides" explains why Michel Fokine developed his own looser plas-air both in the Soviet Union and the United States, Miss Colahan was sensational in the Liszt "Liebestraum," with its wavelike retreating motion and spinning. A solo of unexpected power.

Other pieces in this section were Shawn's "Bach," for three women —Elaine Anderson, Jacquiyn Buglisi and Laurie Kaplan — and three mcn—Miguel Antonio, Ralph Farrington and Clif de Raita—and the St. Denis-Humphrey "Sonata Pathetique."

The Items to single out among the ethnic dances were St. Denis's famous, once-shocking, wiggling "Nautsch Dance," creditably per-formed by Miss Gorrill and Shawn's friezelike "Gnossienne," very welldanced by Mr. Farringtoa. John Colman, who arranged the music, was the sympathetic pianist.

All the production effects were perfect, with each section intro-duced by Walter Terry's taped in-terviews with St. Denis and Shawn. Miss Pinska received a deserved ovation. Behind the scenes, Miss Trisler and the National Endowment for the Arts, which supported the project, deserve one too.

Berliners in Carnegie Series

By RAYMOND ERICSON

The Berlin Philharmonic Orches-tra is in New York for an impres-sive series of five concerts in Carnegie Hall under the direction of Herbert von Karajan, who holds a lifetime position as its permanent

In four of the concerts, the en-semble will be joined by 150 members of the Vienna Singverein for the performance of several choral mastarpieces. The opening program Thursday night, however, was limited to two orchestral works, Schoenberg's "Transfigured Night" and Beethoven's "Eroica" Symphony

Mr. Karajan and his men put their best foot worward with the Schoenberg plece. The composer's version for string orchestra of what was originally a string aextet is one of the most sumptuous of late Romantic works, and the Berlin ensemble did it full justice.

The players are superbly disci-plined and thoroughly responsive to Mr. Karajan, who has been their music director now for 22 years The strings play with a tona that is at once rich and elegant, with the strong, mellow sound of the cellos and double basses (there ware 11 of the latter) balancing beautifully the leaner sound of the higher instruments. The performance was beautifully meshed, deli-cate, sensuous. Mr. Karajan exploited its chamber-music intimacies in an exceptional way.

It was less easy for this writer to like the performance of the "Eroica" Symphony, which won ecstatic cheers and applause from the audience. Mr. Karajan's reading was strong enough, but not as much heroic as demonic. The rhythms were tight, with surprisingly little give and take in them. The brass section had an overnoweringly bright tone, which drowned out the rest of the orchestra when it was going full blast. There were long stretches where the fortissimo sound should have been modulated to a forte but was not. In these ways the performance was surprising, since on his recordings Mr. Karajan is a more pliant and refined conductor.

It should be said that the tempos chosen for the Funeral March and the Scherzo were particularly felicitous, neither too slow on the ona hand not too fast on the other. The Scherzo had its share of good humor, too. Yet the overall impression was one of Beethovian energy without the breadth and insight that can make the symphony trans-

It's strong and driving for uptempo numbers and its slightly frayed qualities work to suggest vulnerability in ballads. And her person ality exudes so much warmth that she could probably read computer print-outs and still win our hearts.

But what surprised this observer was the sheer musicality of her phrasing and the quality of her songs. All fine singers have a way with the musical line that transcends the ordinary, and Melanie's instincts for the weight and flow of a phrase are simply superb. In addition, her new songs—she sang most of her new album, "Photo-graph," at the late show—reveal her as one of the most fascinating songwriters before the public to-

By GORDON S. WHITE Jr.

Two weeks have passed since the small group of undefeated and untied major college football teams lost a member. That last defection from the elite took place, Oct. 23, at Chapel Hill, N.C., where North Carolina booted four field goals and haoded East Carolina its first loss of the season, 12-10. And then there were seven—Colgate, Mary-land, Michigan, Pittsburgh, Rutgers, Southwestern Louisiana and Texas

It seems that somebody is overdue, although the lucky seven got through last week with only one real struggle. That was Texas Tech's sixth triumph in a 31-28 victory over Texas and Tech's most impressive triumph in its perfect season.

As the odds increase against each of these teams they seem to increase more against Rutgers than against the others. The Scarlet Knights are not only burdened with a 8-0 mark this season but with a 15-game winning streak over two seasons that is the longest major college victory streak extant. Added to this, Rutgers is moving into slightly stronger competition today and next week.

Louisville, not altogether a household word in college football circles, goes into New Brunswick, N.J., to try to stem the Scarlet. Despite an unimpres-sive 3-4 record this season, the Cardinals, coached by Vince Gibson, are eager to make Jersey fans remember them well.

"It sure does mean something big for us," Gibson said. "Any team with a winning streak like that gets you excited and up for the game."

The impressive thiog about Louisville is that despite being a predominantly freshmao and sophomore team it did oot exactly roll over and play dead in losing to Mississippi State, Pitls-burgh, Alahama and Tulsa. Each of the four teams that defeated the Cardinals is a strong one and Pitt, of course, remains among the lucky seven.

Louisville is led by a freshman quarterback whose family name was a household word in football. He is Stu Stram, a son of Hank Stram, who is now the coach of the New Orleans Saints of the National Football League. Rutgers still counts primarily on ils defense, a spectacular unit that leads the nation lo total defense (178 yards given up per game), rushing defense (74.9 yards given up per game) and scoring defeose (6.5 points given up per game). What makes Louisville a test is that the Knights, coached by Frank Burns, have heaten eight Division I or major opponents and seveo Division II or small-college teams in the 15-victory skein. Texas Tech may have the easiest task among the seven unbeaten teams today. The Red Raiders from the South-

Giants Holding Out for Fewer Pena

By GERALD ESKENAZI

PLEASANTVILLE, N.Y., Nov. 5-Some of the Giants discovered today that the umpires aren't picking on them -it's the other team.

"I think our guys learned that there wasn't a conspiracy against them," said Ray Wietecha, the coach of an offensiev line that leads the National Football League in hiding penalties.

The embarrassing disclosure that the Giants had committed 22 such penalties the first half of the season (the expan-sionist Seattle Seahawks, by comparisoo, had only 12), led the new coach, John McVay, to request today's private demonstration by the head of the offi-cials, Art McNally.

The Giants' chief offender is the right tackle, Doug Van Horn, who has committed seven, including two in the eighth game last Sunday.

Figures Made Public

"It'll all even out by the end of the season," said Van Horn, who isn't used to such notoriety. "I'm getting a lot of publicity now because the figures have been made public. I thought they changed the interpretation of holding this year, but McNally made me see they didn't."

30hn Hicks, the right guard, not only is oext to Van Horn on the lice-he is next to him with four holding penal-that when an official gets a complaint, he goes out of his way to make sure the complaint is really justified and not call the infraction just because someone is moaning about it."

McVay admitted that the cootinuous holding calls "bave been a problem for us. Every time you do anything to block a drive you say, 'Let'a look at the reason."

Holding Tied to Sackings

Andy Robustelli, the general manager of the Giants, who was a defen-sive end himself once, and subject to being beld, believes that the high number of quarterback sackings this year has led to increased bolding by the quarterback's protectors.

"It's a temptation to hold," said Robustelli. "Especially when the rules permit you to extend your arms. It's an

AlitzRunsRecord 24:13, Takes Heptagonal Title

It was billed as a race but yesterday's 38th annual Heptagonal college crosscountry championship was more of a one-man show. The star was Curt Alitz, a third-year man at Army, who shattered the meet record and ran the fastest five miles at Van Cortlandt Park this season when he won in 24 minutes

Alitz, who is also a swimmer at West Point and as a result hasn't competed in indoor track, ran all by himself for the last half of the race, leading at the three-mile mark in 14:29, abead by more than 150 yards. He kept pouring it on over the final two miles, which he ran in an exceptionally fast 9:44 In spite of a stiff cold wind.

Two sophomores, Tim Cummins of the Navy and Bruce Bond of Princeton, finished second and third, respectively, in 24:50 and 24:51, both personal bests Bond led Princeton to the team title for the second straight year as Larry

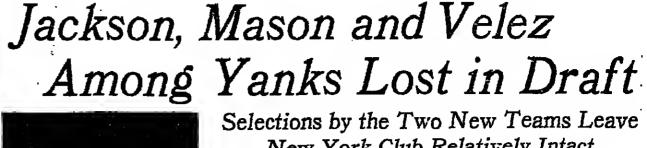

Ellis's Tigers tallied a low total of 65 points. Harvard had four men finish before Princeton's fourth finisher but its fifth scorer was back in the pack and the Crimson ended with 71 points. Alitz, whose father is the varsity wrestling coach at Army, was second to Dave Merrick of Pennsylvania last year when Merrick act the previous meet mark of 24:15.4. The 6-foot-2-inch, 165-pound Cadet was also second to Merrick by 9 seconds when the Penn senior posted a course record of 23:51 in the IC4A championships.

Off yesterday's performance, Alitz thought be might beat the time in this year's 1C4A meet on Nov. 15. "The competition will be better in that meet and if conditions are right, I think I can go under 23:50."

New York Club Relatively Intact

By MURRAY CHASS

Through judicious manipulating of their personnel and the grace of the two new teams, the Yankees' pennantwinning juggernaut was not toro asunder in the American Leagues' expansion draft at the Plaza Hotel yesterday.

The Yankees did not lose, as they had feared they might, Fred Stanley, Dick Tidrow, Lou Piniella, Ken Clay, Fran Healy, Sandy Alomar or Ron Blomberg, each of whom was left unprotected at some point in the draft. Nor did they lose Elliott Maddox, Elrod Hendricks, Gene Locklear or Cesar Tovar, all of whom were left unprotected throughout the five-round. sevened throughout the five-round, sevenhour draft.

So whom did they lose? The Seattle Mariners grabbed Grant Jackson end Juan Bernhardt, and the Toronto Blue Jays selected Jim Mason, Garth lorg

These five were among the 60 players the two new teams acquired for $175,000 each, with each expansion team spending $5.25 million for its 30-man roster. For the $875,000 the Yantheir losses, except perhaps for Jackson, the relief pitcher who had won a spot in Billy Martin's heart with his nifty relief pitching the last half of the

Randolph May Need Surgery The departure of Jackson wasn't so depressing to the Yankees, though, as the news that Willie Randolph, their talented young second baseman, might need a knee operation.

An examination by Dr. Edward Crane, the Yankee physician, turned up chipped cartilage on Randolph's right knee, an injury suffered last July in a game against Kansas City. Ran-

"Chuck Tanner did a fine job for

"There prohably will be an opera-tion," Gabe Paul, the Yankee president said, "They say it's not serious, and we hope they're right." The uncertainty of knee operations, though, would seem to make it all the more important for the Yankees to sign Bobby Grich, their first choice in Thursday's free-agent-negotiation draft. Randolph's injury also was the reason the Yankees were cleased that they hadn't lost Stanley, whom they with-drew to their orotective wing after the first round of the expansion draft, and Alomar, whom they protected after the third round. Under the rules, each of the 12 established American League clubs, from which the two new clubs selected players, was able to "protect" 15 players initially. These players were not subject to drafting by the new teams. Then, every time one of the established clubs lost a player to the draft, it was able to protect three, in addition to the initial 15. "We were happy to bave Fitzmorris as a Blue Jay, albeit briefly," said Peter Bavasi, the young general manager, "but the trade enables us to obtain a good young catcher with a strong arm who should be with us for years to come."

Counting Fitzmorris, the Blue Jays drafted 16 pitchers, the same number as the Mariners. The teams selected somewhat similarly in their other choices, too. Both teams, baving learned from experiences of previous expansion teams, opted primarily for

Reggie Jackson's View From the Top

Secure in the potential prosperity of the first free agent chosen in the Baseball Lib movement, Reggie Jackson was on the telephone from the LaCosta resort near San Diego. where he is the host of a TV series being filmed there. "It's called 'Greatest Sports Legends,'" he was saying. "We just finished doing Gene Sarazen and we're doing Willie Mays and Henry Aaron next." The temptation could not be resisted, "When," he was asked, "are you doing yourself?" Reggie Jackson laughed. "I'm not retired," he said. Hardly. Reggie Jackson ia about to be offered perhaps as much as $3 million in a five-year contract to hit a baseball with a bat, to throw a baseball from right field to home The Times plate and, occasionally, to run as fast as be can from first base to third base and slide if necessary. Moat of the other Baseball Libbers will sign quietly, but Reggie Jackson will sign theatrically be-cause show biz is his style. And that, as much as his skill as a slugger, is why he was named by the Montreal Expoa as the free agent they would most like to turn into a slave

"The Expos visited me more than any other team," Reggie Jackson was saying now. "They act like they really want

The other teams with negotiation rights to bim are the Dodgers, Braves, Padres, Angels, Mets, Yankees, Giants, Pirates A's, Phillies and White Sox as well as the Orioles, his team last season.

"If I could have picked the 12 new teams, those would be the teams," he said, "But they took me out of knowl-

More of a National League Player'

He and his adviser, Gary Walker, an Arizona husinessman, had made it clear which teams he was interested in.

"Tm going to Montreal around November 16 and then stop in New York and Philadelphia and the other cities. I'll even enjoy talking to Charley (Finley) again," be said. "I wasn't surprised that eight National League teams named me and only four American League clubs. I've always been in the American League, but some American League teams can't afford me-Milwaukee, Cleveland, Minnesota-and I'm more of a National League player, aggressive. And there are more National League clubs where one man will mean a lot-Los Angeles, Pittsburgh, the Phillies, the Padres. You put Joe Rudi and Reggie Jackson on the Padres, you've

He was surprised that the Yankees put Don Baylor on their negotiation list while ignoring Rudi, once his A's team-

"Joe Rudi is a great player," be said. "Don Baylor is a a good player, a very good player, an excellent player and be's three years younger, but Joe Rudi is a great player." But be was not surprised that six teams named Rudi in the first round of Thursday's draft. Only the Expos named him in the first round.

"Joe's not vocal," he said. "He's a nice, pleasant guy, Clubs think they'll sign him easy because be's a low profile guy. Clubs think like that. I'm surprised the Dodgers drafted me in the second round. I talked to Al Campanis [the Dodgers' general manager] and Tom LaSorda [the new manager] and they seemed very interested in me but I haven't gotten the great feeling that I'm really wanted any place except

Some baseball people claim that Reggie Jackson is a "divisive" element in a clubhouse.

"Whoever's saying that," he snapped, "probably never had me on their ball club. I'm not like that, Dick Williams [the Expos' new manager] knows me. He was my manager in Oakland but he wants me in Montreal now. He can't think I'm a divisive player. Anybody who calls me a divisive player doean't know me. They're ignorant in the true sense of the word. But some people might be saying that because they're scared of my salary structure, maybe the Phillies are. Baltimore may have relayed that to them. I told the Orioles what I wanted and I held out until I got it but I don't know what I want next year."

If the Dodgers Sign Gullett ...

Reggie Jackson is believed to have been paid $200,000 by the Orioles last season, a $60,000 raise from his A's because of what's there. I've got a contract with ABC, with Geoffrey Beene Clothes, with Puma shoes. After that, Los Angeles, San Diego and the Angels are the next best cities because their atmosphere is the same. Next, the Phillies-they want to build a winning ball club. But the Expos must really want me. Mr. Charles Bronfman [the Expos' owner] called me. Dick Williams came to see me. Their talking about TV work, real estate, Seagram's-that's Mr. Bronfman's firm but I don't drink. Just heer and wine.

"The Yankees talked to me briefly at the playoffs, George Steinbrenner and Gabe Paul, but nothing extensive and the Mets bad two people call me-Willie Mays and Arthur Richman, their p.r. man. And over the weekend. Willie Mays will be here for a show but I don't think he's the money

"But if the Dodgers sign Don Gullett, I'll look there bard. If the Dodgers get Gullett and Jackson, the Reda are in trouble in their division. The Reds are going around like they're the greatest team in history because they won two atraight World Series, but they haven't even done what the A's did. We won three straight. But by disbanding the team, Charley Finley cheated the fans and cheated the game. We had eight guys as good as the Reds' eight and better pitchers. If the Dodgers get Gullett and Jackson, they could draw 2.8 million, maybe 2.9."

Now that's show biz, but Reggie Jackson sounded as if be would like to join the Dodgers just to defend the A's

Soft Course Scrambles International's Outlook

By STEVE CADY

LAUREL, Md., Nov. 5-If tomorrow's Washington D.C. International were being contested among swamp buggles, you'd have to say the grass course was in perfect condition.

For horses, though, the bog-like surface could prodoce a rollof-the-dice race in which victory goes to the luckiest rather than the best. Not since 1972, when two Tracks since 1972, when two horses fell and several others bobbled badly, has the ooe-mile grass oval at Laurel Race Course been in such quagmire shape.

Despite the soft, potentially hazardous footing, nioe runners from seven countries remain in the field for the 26th running of the $150,000 race at a mile and a half. They include the first, third and fourth place finishers in last month's prix de l'Arc de Triompbe, the 1-mile French event considered by many to be the world's most prestigious horse race.

Ivanjica, the 4-year-old filly that won the Arc de Triomphe, was listed as the 2-1 overnight favorite for the International, Nelson Bunker Hunt's 3-year-old colt, Youth, third in the Arc, is the 5-2 second choice.

5-2 second choice.

Maurice Zilber, the Egyptian-born trainer of Youth, said today the French Derby winner would definitely start despite the cut be suffered recently on the heel of bis right rear leg. "We have to try, anyhow," said Zilber, who has saddled two previous winners of the International for Hunt.

However, the soft condition of the

However, the soft condition of the course may leave the International without an American representative for without an American representative for the first time in its history. Yesterday, Improviser was withdrawn from the race after an injury in a workout. Today, the presence of Effervescing in the starting field became questionable. Joho Russell, trainer of the only re-maining American representative, indicated the 3-year-old colt owned by Ogden Phipps might be taken out of the race rather than "invite possible injury" in the soft footing.

No rain of any consequence bas fallen here in a week, but an inspection of the grass course today showed a soggy surface pockmarked in places with holes gouged out during earlier work-outs. Some of the boles were half a foot deep, and workmen, carrying buckets of dirt from mounds of loam assembled at 100-foot intervals, were busy trying to get them filled late this

Most of the depressions began about 25 feet from the inner rail, beyond the area that bas been protected by temporary railings. But eveo oo the inner areas, a foot pressed against the grass produced a squishing sound Manage-ment has tried drying the course with helicopters, but the track was built on reclaimed marshland, and springs keep the water table high. Unusually heavy October rains created the biggest prob-

Nevertheless, the foreign contingents are ready to take their chances. They point out that at Longchamp, the Paris track at which the Arc de Triomphe is run, the course is rated for softness to a maximum of 5 points on thescale. The rating for this year's Arc, won in the extremely slow time of 2:39 2s, the rating was 4.7.

"If they bobble on a soft course like this," said Terje Dahl, trainer of Noble Dancer, "it's harder to get them back into balance. But I don't think the suface here is what you'd call really dan-

Nobie Dancer, the best thoroughbred ever developed in Norway, ran fourth in the Arc after being checked badly with an eighth of a mile to go. Dahl trains the 4-year-old colt in the snow in Norway, and horsemen who have seen Noble Dancer gallop here feel he may benefit from the soft, deep course. With or without Efferyescing, the

With or without Effervescing, the invaders are expected to carry the day. Foreign horses have won 18 of the Foreign horses have won 18 of the previous runnings, compared with 11 victories for Americans. And Effervescing was rated no better than an 8-1 fifth choice. Oregon Desert Selected As Site for Speed Runs

BURNS, Ore., Nov. 5 (AP)-Attempts to break world land-speed records will start on the Alvord Desert about Nov. 18 with the first all-out run as early as Nov. 20, promoters said today. The records are 308 milea per hour over a mile for women and 631 m.p.h. over one kilometer for men,

The Bureau of Land Management gave approval earlier this week for use of the desert. The car is a 38-foot-long, 20-inch-wide rucket-powered aluminum cylinder, which is capable, in theory, of 850 m.p.h. and of reaching 400 m.p.h. in three seconds. It is powered by hydrogen peroxide.

The men's record will be tried by Hal Needham, 39 years old, a Hollywood stuntman, and the women's will be attacked by Kitty O'Neil, 28, Fillmore, Calif., a stuntwoman.

Track Pays Off $22,000 On a Counterfeit Ticket

CLEVELAND, Nov. 5 (UPI)-Thistledown Race Track paid off nearly $22,000 on a "superb" counterfeit trifecta ticket although the track possibly will not be stuck for the money. Three 10-2-1 combination tickets were sold for last Snnday's trifecta and on Wednesday and two were cashed for the $21,949.40 payoff. One turned out to have been altered.

Apparently the 10 and 2 were legitimate and the last number was changed into a 1. Automatic Totalsators Ltd. of Newark, Del., which provides equipment and tote-ticket paper to the track, probably will cover the loss under provisioos of its contract, a track spokes-at the cost of four faults, was the only. mistake made by the United States.

"This certainly is a tough one to lose," said James Elder, a distributor for a Toronto refrigeration unit firm, who captains the Canadian team. "But it shows improvement. We lost by a bigger margin recently when the United States woo the first of the Nations Cup events in Washington."

Irooic so far as the Canadians are concerned was that the 41/4 faults made in the first round were committed by Branch County, a 7-year-old chestnut gelding who won a silver medal at the recent Olympics in Mootreal.

The miscue, which developed intoa key one, was made as Branch County was racing around the intricate 13-obstacle course against time. The four-fault knockdown occurred about halfway through the course as the geld-ing was attempting to clear the third fence in a three-gate combination. Had the jumper been able to finish the round within the regulation 81 seconds, Canada would have had its tie with the United States, with four faults each But Brancb County, who was ridden hy Michelle Vaillancourt, who scored with him in Montreal, exceeded the deadline by fifty two-hundreths of a second and was assessed another quarter-point fault.

"It's indeed unfortunate," said Elder. "But that's the show ring for you. Branch County is a great horse. But he's still on the young side and we try to control his speed as he makes his rounds. He would have been home with plenty to spare if he hadn't made contact with that gate."

The outcome today in the Nations Cop enabled the United States to increase its overall lead. The Americans led at the end of the afternoon program with 49 points. Canada was second with 29 after which came Ireland with

2, and Belgium with 7.
Immediately preceding the Top Score
Stake last night was the $500 threegaited saddle horse championship class for the McDonald Challenge Trophy. The event, for women riders, was won by Set the Style from the Finisterre Farm of Washington, N. J.

The Marriners were looking for a third beseman in the second round, so they chose Bernhardt, a 23-year-old Yankee farmhanc.

At that point, Piniella, Healy and Terry Whitfield, a minor league out-fielder, were withdrawn from the "available" list, and the Blue Jays grabbed Mason in the third round.
Mason, 27, became a Yankee three years ago, but he was never able to fulfill the hopes the Yankees had for him. Unfortunately for him, Mason doesn't figure to start for Toronto, either. The short-top job, at least for now, belongs to Bailor.

Alomar Carlos May and Blomberg, who has hardly played the last two years, because of a shoulder problem, were the rext three be protected, and lorg was the next to be selected, by Toronto.

Who is lorg? He is a 22-year-old sec-ond baseman whom the Yankees had planned to place on their 40 man roster today. He is playing for the Yankees' team in the Florida instructional league after having recovered from a broken leg he suffered during the season at West Haven.

Before the final round, the Yankees protected two minor league pitchers, Bob Polinsky and Doug Heinold, and the Blue Jays opted for Velez, a 26-year-old Puerto Rican who just couldn't make it with the Yankees after having once been designated one of the "family jewels."

That was in 1973, when the Yankees wanted to hire Dick Williams es their manager. Williams, however, was under contract to Charles O. Finley and Finley wanted compensation in return, namely Velez and Scott MacGregor, a pitcher. But Paul said Finley couldn't have them. Now both are departed.

Allen a Free Agent . Dick Allen, the controversial Philadelphia first baseman, became a free agent yesterday, it was learned. Allen had signed a contract with the Phillies late in the season for 1976 only and has chosen to exercise his option under the new basic agreement to become a free agent.

A special negotiation draft will have to be held for Allen. If only one teem or none selects rights to him, he will be free to deal with all 26 teams.

By MAX H. SEIGEL

Yolanda Sarmiento, a 47-year-old native of Chile, has pleaded guilty in Federal District Court in Brooklyn to charges that she conspired to smuggle hundreds of millions of dollars worth of heroin and cocaine into the United States between

Misa Sarmiento told Judge Henry Bramwell that the narcotics had been smuggled through Kennedy International Airport in jugs labeled Chilean wine.
David A. DePetris, an assistant United States attorney, indicated at the hearing that Miss Sarmientn had offered to coop-erate with the Government, Other sources disclosed that the Chilean wnman had already cooperated by alerting Federal authorities when she had been approached in the Metropolitan Correctional Center by an inmate and a guard whn nffered to get her out of the institution

Alleged Escape Thwarted

Working with the Federal authorities, Miss Sarmiento went through with the plan for the escape and walked out the front door of the detention center on Oct.S. a guard at her side and false identi-fication papers in her hand. They entered a car and, shortly afterward, were stopped by Federal agents who had been monitoring the alleged escape.

Twn guards, George D. Phillip and Yasin A. Wahid, were subsequently indicted on charges of accepting a bribe and aiding a prisoner to escape. The in-mate, Joseph A. Martinez, and three women involved in the alleged escape also were indicted.

Miss Sarmiento, a former resident ni Coocord Village, a few hundred yards from the Federal Courthouse in Brooklyn, had fled from the United States to Argentina late in 1970, forfeiting $100,000 in hall, after she was arrested by New York City police officers in connection with the seizure of a large supply of heroin. About New York

The Sunset Years on Lydig Avenue

By FRANCIS X. CLINES

A queer dappling of modesty and fear shades some of the best streets of the Bronx, Elderly customers of Helen Ruda's bakery on Lydig Avenue lately have to excuse themselves, turn to the wall and retrieve their money from hiding places in their underclothes and shoes to pay for their sweets.

"It's a shame to see," says Frieda Turchin, the saleswoman, looking out on the avenue, a bustling retail at etch. by daylight. Outside, dozens of old people stand together against store windows and in doorways, chatting in animated social groups that move strategically every so often to keep within the cally every so often to keep within the patches of afterneon sunlight.

Autumn in the Pelham neighborhood has an extra appeal at the sight of all the old people who are its main population and whose canes and shopping carts, pleasantries and stout winter coats buttress the area's reputation. as one of the remaining sound middleclass spots of the greatly troubled

But autumn limns the anxious profile of the elderly, too. They stand as politely protective crowds at many places along Lydig, preferring this form of society to the sit-down setting of the long lines of benches along Pelham Parkway a block to the north. The sea-son's first chilly gusts moved some bench-sitters out. Then some of those remaining felt extra nervous at the prospect of muggers and purse-snatchers, a hlight that has not consumed this particular neighborhood but one that the elderly track like a fever chart on television and in newspapers when they return to their apartments before night falls.

"Ob God, did you see the TV about the woman stabled to death?" one elderly woman, staring full face into the sun while seated on a vegetable crate on Lydig asked her companion, Nodding and firm-lipped, Mrs. Lipton had heard of this, the latest lesson in a long life that she recalls beginning safely enough as a child on the Lower East Side, where ber parents could leave the door unlocked.

"I don't know if this will ever clear np again," Mrs. Lipton said of the city she has known and of the predator-haunted sunset years that have heen the fate of many of its long-term residents. She clearly is among the more fortunate retired people, hut she has worked at this hy being able to move several times in recent years as she felt the encroachment of the first inci-ern capitals that led to the 1973 Geneva Conference and subsequent disengage-ment agreements on the Sinai and Go-lan fronts. Mr. Sheehan, now a research fellow at Harvard, accompanied the

Kissinger party on at least one of the shuttles and then returned to the area to probe Arab and Israeli sources for a

When lengthy excerpts from the book were first published several months ago in Foreign Policy magazine, the inclusion of long verbatim quotes from Mr. Kissinger's closed-door sessions of the published several months and the second se sions with Israeli leaders caused a great futor. The Secretary pronounced himself "thunderstruck" by the leak, and a scnior and highly regarded aide at the State Department was later officially reprimanded for having read long passage of the transcripts to Mr. Shee.

passages of the transcripts to Mr. Shee-han, who evidently took copious notes. The "thunderstruck" Mr. Kissioger was being disingenuous, at the very least. It later emerged that he had himself instructed the aide to give Mr. Sheehan the belp be needed to prepare his account. Even that shallow shenani-gan provides a revealing glimpse of the kissinger technique in action.

The book, then, is an assisted if not actually authorized account and, not surprisingly, Mr. Kissinger comes off very well. Mr. Sheehan portrays him as a gifted, insightful operator who saw a rare opportunity in the October war to improve the standing of the United States in the Middle East and diminish that of the Soviet Union.

But the author is not an unalloyed admirer of this jet-age Mctlcmich. He faults him sharply for his failure to at-tempt an overall solution in the Middle East and even more so for his "myopic neglect of that elementary problem — the Palestinian people."

Mr. Sheehan also appreciates the special irony in the fact that it was the first Jewish Secretary of State who con-structed what the author calls "the first coherent Arab policy for the United States" through his close con-tacts with Presidents Sadat of Egypt and Assad of Syria.

The book closes with a warning and an appeal. The United States has "until the middle or end of 1977," in Mr.

Sheehan's view, to launch a new Middle East initiative or face disastrous consequences. He expects these to include a collapse of the Sadat regime in Egypt,

a new war and oil embargo and pos-sible bankruptcy for Israel.

The only alternative, in Mr. Shee-han's opinion, is a broad new negotia-tion leading to an overall Middle East solution based on an Israeli withdrawai to nearly the 1967 boundaries and the creation of a separate Palestinian state on the West Bank and in the Gaza Strip. An ambitious formula, and not one likely to be put into effect by the kind of bectic, one-man diplomacy de-scribed so ably in this book.

A Woman Falls Off Ship, Stays Afloat 2 Hours

By ROBERT D. McFADDEN

There were no cries of 'woman overboard" when 64-year-old Margaret Full-er slipped on the rolling deck of the liner Windsor Castle last Monday morn-ing and plunged into the chilly South Atlantic, 250 miles off the coast of

In fact, no one even saw it happen.
And the vessel, bound from Britain to South Africa, steamed on its way, leaving Mrs. Fuller—clad only in light blue nightgown—thrashing in heavy Moreover, it was nearly an hour later when her husband, Leslie, noticed she was missing. He told Capt. Patrick St. Quentin Beadon and, after a search appeared to confirm their fears, the ship was turned around to look for the lost passenger.

saip was turned around to look for the lost passenger.

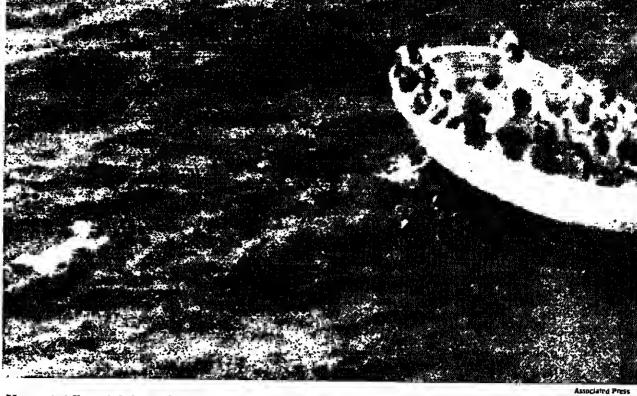

Attempting to retrace its 25-mile course over the open sea, the Windsor Castle at first followed its own trail of beer cans, garbage and other jettisoned floating debris. But, Captain Beadon recalled yesterday, "after a while these began to disappear."

If then became a matter of pippoint It then became a matter of pinpoint navigation, which, said the captain,

"takes a certain amount of skill and a great deal of luck." Tension mounted as the search progressed. Passengers lined the ship's rails. Officers on the bridge scanned the sea with binoculars.

Finally, more than two hours after she went overboard, Mrs. Fuller was spotted in the waler, floating on her back and waving wildly for attention. Some crewmen said they thought they saw a shark circling near ber at the

Margaret Fuller, 64, being picked up by lifeboat off coast of Angola after being in water for more than two bours

A motor launch was lowered and, with the help of a line, the shivering, exhausted woman was hauled aboard and returned to the ship wrapped in a blanket. She was taken to the sick bay, where she was pronounced in satisfactory condition.

Mrs. Fuller, a resident of Port Eliza-beth, South Africa, who had traveled with her husband to England to visit relatives, later explained that she managed to stay up by floating on her back to conserve energy and swimming the breat stroke occasionally to keep

Fuller, who described the hours of uncertainty as a nightmare, said it was "a miracle she was found," and he praised the seamanship of the captain and the crew. "It is not really unusual for a ship to find someone who has fallen overboard," said Captain Beadon. "It is oot a complicated calculation to retrace your course. If you do it accurately, you will arrive back on the same

As for Mrs. Fuller, the captain said:
"She certainly was very tired, but not in a poor condition. She had no lifejacket, so it was quite a good effort."

No Insult

One of the police union delegates who shouted down the city's latest contract offer Thursday complained that the revised proposal was "an insult to our intelligence" because it was not substantially different from the initial offer. But instead of being an "insult" to the intelligence, the proposal is in fact an appeal to the intelligence. It it based on the irrefutable fact that when the Mayor of this hard-pressed city aaid "we simply don't have any more money" to sweeten the settlement pot, be meant it. No amount of cursing and cavorting in the streets, or more ominous threats, can change

Furthermore, it is clear that the Mayor could not possibly grant to the police favors that have already been denied to other municipal unions. There is no way an exception could be made for any group of municipal employees without plunging the city into labor chaos and, ultimately, bankruptcy.

The delegates moved even further from reality with their demand for "total amnesty" for officers who face charges stemming from last month's riotous demonstrations. No mayor and no police commissioner worth his salt could stand for this-and indeed, yesterday Commissioner Michael J. Codd firmly rejected the idea of amnesty. He must also be prepared to move expeditiously against any unruliness or malingering in threatened job actions.

Indiscipline and outright law-breaking by policemen of the kind that have been openly witnessed on the streets of this city in recent weeks-at Yankee Stadium, at Madison Square Garden, in Times Square and elsewhere-cannot he condoned. Officers who bave put themselves above the law must be dealt with firmlyand promptly-for the safety of the city and for the survival of a fine Police Department as an effective law-enforcement agency.

It is ironic that the first job action set hy dissident officers was to begin strictly to enforce the traffic laws. It is a sad commentary on civic morality that a decision to show a little zeal in the performance of their ordinary duty should be regarded hoth hy the police and by important elements of the public as a significant threat. Enforcement of the traffic and all other laws ought to be the norm; to use traffic enforcement as a device to extort concessions is as absurd as it is self-defeating.

Ride Now, Pay Later

Jolted by threats of a fare rise to help cover an estimated $70 million transit deficit, city officials have reverted to an old and thoroughly discredited dodgeborrow now and pay later.

Instead of cutting costs or facing up to the need for new revenue sources, Mayor Beame has promised to push for new Federal aid under the "Beame shuffle," which permits the city to divert a portion of Federal capital assistance to operating expenses. There are at least three flaws in this approach.

• The Metropolitan Transportation Authority needs all of the capital assistance it can get to refurbish a sadly deteriorating transit system. Shoddy and noisy equipment and other facilities are at least on a par with excessive fares as deterrents to wider public transit use.

• Any Federal capital funds that are used this year to pay for operating costs must be repaid next year through increased local and state capital funding. This means that the city and the state-principally the state-must float bonds next year to pay for this year's expenses, the kind of costly expediency that bas helped to drive the city into near-bankruptcy. Under pressure from the Emergency Financial Control Board, City Hall has been forced to phase out this unsound practice in other areas of municipal finance. There should he no exception for

• Extending, and even enlarging the Beame shuffle, as the Transit Authority yesterday suggested, cannot aclve tha problem of chronic transit deficits, which will arise compounded next July 1, when the threat of a fare increase must again be faced.

It would be far better-and cheaper-for city and state to face this issue now and to initiate steps to impose a new regional tax-possibly on gasoline-to help underwrite on a sustained basis the region's essential transit requirements.

One Human Life

The Shah of Iran stooped to a shameful act a few days ago in handing over to the Soviet Union-for execution or long imprisonment—a Soviet pilot who had flown his light plane over the Iranian border and asked for political Seeking a legal facade to justify its unjustifiable action, the Iranian Government cited a Soviet-Iranian antihijacking agreement. But the unfortunate pilot, Lieut. Valentin I. Zasimov, was not guilty of hijacking at all, since he was in legal control of his plane and nobody else was in it.

The Iranians preferred to ignore their obligations under the 1951 United Nations convention on refugees, to which Iran is a party. That pact stipulates that a political refugee like Lieutenant Zasimov may not be returned to the country from which be fled.

But if the Iranians bad kept to their pledged word (and emulated the Japanese in a recent similar case) they might bave endangered their new four-year trade agreement with the Soviet Union, a pact the Shah apparently values more than one human life.

Capitol Plan

While there has been a great deal of vague campaign rhetoric about streamlining the Washington bureaucracy, there has been some very real action toward dealing with the physical chaos on Capitol Hill,

These 243 acres of buildings and grounds controlled only by the Architect of the Capitol, usually under parochial Congressional prodding, are noted equally for their historical and esthetic richness and terminal disorder. The nation's symbolic center has become its most anguished space squeeze.

After years of indifference and resistance, the preparation of a master plan was finally authorized by Congress last year. The initial study, begun in April, has produced an admirable first-phase report, prepared by the Capitol Planning group appointed by the Architect of the Capitol, George M. White. The report defines essential areas of study for the present and future needs of the legislative and judicial branches of the Federal Government. It is also a model of rational thinking and an impressive apolitical act. The basic problems addressed are total space needs, circulation, and visual and environmental effect. The next stage will study these clearly identified problems in detail,

The best argument for a master plan is the success of the two that have preceded it. The original L'Enfant Plan of 1792 and the McMillan Plan of 1901 have set and controlled the character of Washington to a remarkable degree, and Capitol Hill growth was surprisingly well accommodated within that handsome framework until recently. Where those plans have been violated for expediency, as in the visual mutilation of the south facade hy an expressway and bridges, real damage has occurred. Building-snatching, as in the recent desperate House grab for the Madison Library, was expediency turned into farce.

What is envisioned now is not a rigid hlueprint, but an organized, flexible process for the future. If the plan also embodies the vision and standards of L'Enfant and McMillan, both the Capitol and the country will be well

A Fair Haven?

Since 1972 more than 700 Haitians have left their homeland in all manner of small craft for the hazardous 800-mile ocean voyage to the United States, where they sought refuge and some modicum of economic security. While time and circumstance have moved the nation heyond the era of Emma Lazarus's lamp and golden donr, both Americans and others around the globe assume that 20th-century pilgrims will at least get fair treatment in America. The treatment these Haitian immigrants have received from the United States Government casts real doubt on that assumption.

The process of determining whether the Haitians are actually political refugees involves an interview with a representative of the Immigration and Naturalization Service in Florida, review of that interview hy a supervisor, its forwarding to the State Department for a recommendation and then its return to the LN.S. for final disposition.

The determination is based on the facts elicited in the initial hearing. Generally such bearings have taken no more than twenty minutes-including time for the questions, translations and transcription. Considering the fact that the Haitians are generally reticent people who speak a difficult derivative of French, that is breathtaking speed. Expeditious disposition of the hearings is partially explained by the fact that in this procedure the refugees are not represented by counsel, have little sense of the law or of the purpose and importance of the interview. The rest of the procedure—the reviews and the deniais of status as political refugees—has often been known to take less than a week. The LN.S. procedures contrast sharply with interviews with some of the Haitian refugees conducted under the auspices of the National Council of Churches. Those interviews took considerably more time than 20 minutes -sometimes as much as three hours-because of the language difficulties and the diffidence of the interviewees. As a result of these interviews, the N.C.C. has produced approximately 200 affidavits supporting Haitian claims for political asylum which they began submitting to Federal authorities in the summer of 1974. In contrast to the quick responses given to the I.N.S. interviews, no decision has yet been taken on any of the petitions supported by those affidavits.

The pattern of governmental action raises the question whether the United States, at least in its dealings with the Haitians, is acting in accordance with the United Nations Protocol Relating to the Status of Refugees which was ratified by the Senate in 1968. That protocol imposes an obligation upon signatories to offer political asylum to authentic political refugees and to afford them due process in determining their status.

Close observers believe that the United States is not living up to those obligations in the case of people who have fled the regime of Jean-Claude Duvalier, President-for-life of Haiti. The Governing Board of the National Council of Churches suggested in a resolution that they suffer badly in comparison to the treatment given to refugees from Cuba and even go so far as to question whether color is one of the factors in determining the differential in treatment.

Arcbbishop Coleman F. Carroll of Miami is more blunt ahout it. "My dog gets better treatment than these people," he said.

The point is clear. The United States by tradition, international agreement and national principle is obligated to give the supplicants from Haiti a fair opportunity to meke their case and an honest decision on the merits. No consideration of policy suggests any other course—and the national honor demands it.

Letters to the Editor

- Unemployment: The Concealed Plight

To the Editor:

Your editorial on economic issues in the Presidential campaign accurately distinguishes between Ford's complacent acceptance of slow growth in the economy, despite the accompanying excessively high imemployment, and Carter's proposals to accelerate growth and increase jobs consistent with keeping inflation under control. But several inferences in the editorial that unemployment is a problem primarily affecting youth, women and minorities are misleading and hide the basic fact that millions of experienced, skilled workers are out of work today, and their oumber is growing.

Unfortunately, many academics and others who are considered experts in the employment field specifically reinforce this distorted analysis-witness the Oct. 27 Op-Ed article "Analyzing Joblessness." That article attributes the current severe unemployment to changes to labor-force participation, particularly of youth and women, unemployment insurance and similar factors.

But not a word about the almost 10 percent rate of unemployment among the thirty million blue-collar workers, skilled and with long attachments to the work force, about g5 percent of wbom are male. Their rate of joblessness has risen steadily since May and is significantly greater than in sixteen of the seventeen years prior to the current recession, for which comparable data are available. No one can deny that unemployment among youth, minorities and women is two to three times the national average, and it is crucial to develop carefully crafted programs to meet that situation. But at the same time, let's recognize that about 22 million persons are in professional technical and managerial occupations, where unemployment consistently averages 3 to 31/2 percent.

The low unemployment rate for this substantial group of workers pulls the national unemployment rate down and conceals the true dimension of the severe imemployment among the craft workers, operatives and nonfarm laborers, who make up the blue-collar work force in our nation.

It ill behooves those of us in the professional and technical occupations (e.g. academics, public officials, researchers and editorial writers), speaking from the sanctuary of a 3 percent jobless status, to proclaim that imemployment is oot a pervasive problem, based on statistical evidence limited to selected groups and changes in the composition of the work force.

To the Editor:

Your Oct 24 editorial bas properly alerted the citizens of New York State to the Governor's failure to protect New York's coastal resources from unrestrained and poorly planned oil drilling in the Atlantic Ocean.

Our Imperiled Shores

As co-plaintiff with New York State in the offshore-oil sult, we were particularly distressed by the Governor's direction to the Attorney General to withdraw from the suit. His directive came without consultation with the state's co-plaintiffs and, more importantly, according to all newspaper accounts, without prior consultation with the state's own lawyers handling the case. Without such consultation it is hard to fathom what new information the Governor received to alter his position in light of the fact that the purpose of the litigation from the outset has been to insure that adequate environmental safeguards exist throughout the drilling program.

Some justification for the Governor's action might exist if the state were pursuing a vigorous program for coastal-zone protection under the Federal Coastal Zone Management Act. This sadly is not the case. Though the state has received sizable Federal grants for the program, the record to date shows that the state's program has failed miserably.

In light of the Governor's record on coastal protection, citizens can do little but wage their own fight to protect our great coastal resources.

On the 'Right' to Health Care To the Editor:

Two fundamental errors contained in the Oct. 28 letter call for response and correction.

Miss Weiss says, "Health care is not a quantifiable matter." meaning by this, I suppose, that no money limits apply to it. Of course, good health is "priceless." But that does not mean that health care is the only good there is, nor that we should or can devote all our resources to it. Willy-nilly, we bave to choose among goods.

She speaks of health care as a "right." It is not mere semantic out bling to protest the use of "right" as applying to some tangihle good that someone must affirmatively provide. Such use confuses, and it leads us to absurd results, If we each have a right to receive health care, then, pray tell. who has the duty to provide it?

By refusing to acknowledge that goods such as health care have a cost which must be paid and by elevating such goods into rights, Miss Weiss converts a practical problem capable of a variety of practical solutions into a metaphysical problem utterly incapable of any satisfactory solution. Simultaneously, of course, she declares her moral superiority: She is on the side of right, and anyone having a sense of proportion is a moral DAVID J. MANDEL

This is still a nation of immigrants. Immigration, now as in the past, is a permanent fixture. But the situation today requires a fresh look and critical analysis, since immigration has been on the rise precisely at a time of high unemploy-

Immigration has been increasingly associated with unemployment so simplistically as to imply that closing the doors on foreign labor will solve the unemployment problem. On the contrary, both immigration and unemployment are established pillars of American socioeconomic life and are not merely the products of current economic trends.

Altogether, 3.5 million legal immigrants entered the United States between 1964 and 1974. If illegal immigrants are included at the rates estimated by the Immigration and Naturalization Service and the Labor Department, the number would reach a etaggering 8 to 12 million.

More than 10 percent of the labor force is made up of recent immigrant workers. In New York City, there are more than 1.5 million recent immigrants; 10 percent of needles-trade labor consists of immigrants. In Detroit, there are in pre-Depression labor conditions. The unwritworkers in the auto industry. In Mahwah, N.J., at the Ford plant, Puerto Rican, Dominican, Honduran, Haitian and other Caribbean and Latin-American peoples bave been bired in recent years in increasingly large num-

National unemployment is still at its highest since the 1930's. Unemployment in such cities as New York and Detroit underscores the extent of the new joblessness. More and more, people are being thrown out of work it has taken generations of aspirations to achieve. Indeed, current unemployment is dominated by the children ot earlier immigrants. And if, as seems the case. the Ford Administration is ready to accept 6 percent unemployment as the definition of full employment, it is ensuring limited, even downward mobility for more and more Americans.

It is important to recognize that the new hardcore unemployed are, in fact, the immigrants and in-migrants who had supposedly "made it" through protective labor contracts, white collar status, and the security of public employment.

Yet, new immigrants are still coming to find work. They are prepared to work for pay that is below the minimum wage, and find themselves ten agreement is that their hard work, which generates business profits, will also generate personal success. Consequently, they expect precisely the security and mobility that earlier immigrants are losing.

Meanwhile, the heavy concentration of illegals among those who arrive from Asia, Africa, the Middle East, Latin America. the Caribbean and Southern Europe are the latest manifestation of the way American society-and that of other Western nations-continually reproduce the bottom of the social structure.

Illegals are not legitimate workers and so function outside the law and outside the protections that labor has won over the years. Apparently, this is the only way that American business enterprise can turn a "reasonable"

Illegals work under conditions that all immigrants were subject to in earlier periods; immigrant labor has historically provided the basis for business flexibility in the face of the economic cycle.

Illegal immigration underscores the costs paid for this flexibility, reminding us of the continuing need for foreign workers and proving that the profit/labor equation it represents can only exist on a sufficiently large scale by operating outside the law.

Furthermore, illegal immigration in the face of high unemployment means that the opportunity and mobility that immigrants historically came here for has been exceedingly fragile. Making room for new people at the bottom of the social ladder has frequently given the impression that the push upward for those who preceded them is widespread and durable. But

As in the past, cheap labor is imported. But on an unprecedented scale, these workers are now illegal immigrants whose labor and living conditions go virtually unprotected by the norme of law. The new unemployed and the new immigrants, especially illegals, show how the priorities of profit in American economic life continue to demand impoverished workers. Nowadays, however, the dream that attracts them and the profit their labor produces have to operate outside the law to work at all.

first. So much for New York contacts. We beaded across the Richmond-San Rafael Bridge to Marin County, which we heard was mellow.

There were several bouses in Marin that I thought "classically California." Larry thought they were too big, too 'middle class." He wanted something funky, which meant a house with at least eight major visible faults. Having spent a solid month bouse-hunting, we compromised on a redwood houseboat at Gate Six on the Sausalito waterfront. It most assuredly qualified as funky. We decorated with the aid of Cost-Plus, a San Francisco discount import house that I thought was a close second to Macy'e basement. We hid the houseboat's greatest flawa under 20 yards of grass mats and four large tie-dves from India.

Our neighbors were survivors of Vietnam and/or graduates of the Haight-Ashbury flower-power, acidspeed school of life. Zeus and Star. our next-dock neighbors, were considered heavyweights. (After all, EZeus had played backup guitar for Janis at two of her outdoor concerts and Star had lived with the Dead before they moved to their ranch in Novato.) Most of the dudes were mallowing out and getting laid back. Vietnam had been a really bad trip. The chicks were cleaning up their acts and getting their bodies together after burning out on too much

Larry shed his New York self at a rapld pace; I held onto mine like a lost kid clutching a stranger's hand. Larry loved the feeling that nobody cared who you were or where you came from; I felt nobody cared enough to notice. He thought the people were laid back and groovy; I thought they were lazy and goofy. Larry thought they had it all together; I wasn't sure what they had since nobody ever said anything. It dido't matter if you tolo someona your best friend just OD'd on speed or he had just inherited $10,000, what you'd get was for out!

I was surrounded by nonverbal, nonsmoking (cigarettes); non-meat-eating zealots. I was a pariah and I found myself looking back fondly on days spent in Upper West Side kitchens aipping wine, smoking Camels and arguing over which Broadway butcher sold the best aged beef.

Larry wasn't much help. He spent the greater part of each day hooked up to a couple of speakers the aize of bank vaults. The rest of his day was devoted to practicing "soul travel." Larry kept urging me to find a rightaous path: I cautioned him on the pitfalls of spiritual dilettantism.

The divorce was amicable. I even invited Larry and his new old lady (she taught yoga and was into macrame) to have dinner at my new house in Fairfax. I baked a meatless lasagna and tossed a salad containing four kinds of lettuce plus watercress and sprouts. They wouldn't taste it; it wasn't organic.

I crossed the laid-back hipple life off my list and began the quest for one that fit. That's how I put those 80,000 miles on my bus.

Although New York is in my past, it still sticks like oatmeal; Marin seems as sweet and ephemeral as cotton candy. In 1970 a great many people were searching for a new and less brutal reality. Easterners who came West were grateful for the distance between themselves and the decisions being made in Washington. Life here has been sweet, but it may be time for me to leave the amusement park.

ANKARA, Turkey-The crux of that aspect of the Turkisb-Greek quarrel involving sea space—territorial waters and the continental shelf-is now being gingerly approached in hilateral negotiations at Berne. The issue is quite simply posed. The Greeks claim Turkey is trying to turn the Aegean into a Turkish sea. The Turks say Greece is trying to make it a Greek sea.

This ia the single most dangeroue facet of mounting hostility between NATO'e bickering allies in the east Mediterranean. The Greeks, who are more gifted than the Turks in expressing their views internationally, claim that since Turkey twice invaded Cyprus in 1974, grabbing 40 percent of the island, it is edging outward at the expense of Greece in other areas.

The Turkish argument is complex. It contends that Athens has violated treaty obligations to keep the Dodecanese (acquired from Italy after World War II) and other offshore Asia Minor islands demilitarized; that Greece sought to double the previous sixmile limit of Dodecanese territorial

·Under a Greek six-mile limit, Ankara argues. Turkey has five outlets to open Aegean waters. Under a twelve-mile limit it has only two such outlets. Ankara claims Greek islands can block access to Turkey'e western shoreline and that the southern Turkish ports of Mersin, Iskenderun and Antalya were domioated by Cyprus-until the Turkish invasion of that island in

At this point Turkish spokesmen drag in the "megali" or "great" idea. seen here as the core of Athens policy.

This is regarded by Turks as an exaggerated continuance of the nineteenth- and early twentieth-century liberation of Greek-inhabited territories held by foreign states, terminating with the Dodecanese.

The Most Dangerous Sea

The idea of "panhellenism," with Constantinople-capital of Greek-ruled Byzantium-as its ultimate goal, is much bruited by immoderate Turks, just as the idea of "panturanianism" with a restored Ottoman Emplre as its ultimate goal is much bruited by immoderate Greeks. In fact, in 1931, Ataturk, father of modern Turkey, and Greek Prime Minister Venizelos agreed on existing borders and mutual friendship.

This situation basically prevailed and both countries joined NATO, even bolding joint maneuvers, until the Cyprus issue festered. The Cyprus squabble was followed by arguments over territorial waters, the continental shelf and mutual air space.

The Turks blame President Makarios for feeding the embers of an always uneasy situation in Cyprus, whose Greek-speaking majority and Turkishspeaking minority agree on only one thing: that they are not Cypriots but respectively Greeks or Turks. Makarios dropped the idea of joining Cyprus to Greece because he enjoyed the trappings of independence; but be strongly disfavored the Turkish mi-

The Turks have been straining at the leash to aeize a chunk of Cyprus since 1964 when President Lyndon Johnson warned them off. Ten years later they did just that while the United States was waddling in Watergate. Both Ankara (publicly) and Athens (privately) imply that the only way to settle the argument is by a binational other, war would be inevitable.

federated state: but they can't agree on frontiers between its two communities.

It seems logical to proceed on hilateral Greco-Turkish negotiations as started-at a low level-in Berne (and also in Paris where national air space is under scrutiny) before moving on to the thorny subject of Cyprus, which includes the Makarioe Government plns Britain as a guarantor.

The initial problem remains the Aegean, Ankara insists the Dodecanese Islands are two hundred miles from mainland Greece and only three to twelve miles from Turkish Anatolia of which they geologically form a unit, The trouble is that all oations are now screaming at each other about territorial waters and the continental shelf (where valuable minerals can be mined).

There has been oo agreement on these issues among nations participating in five sessions of a Law of the Sea Conference sponsored by the United Nations. The fifth meeting recently concluded in total disarray. Therefore, no treaty or law exists that can be accepted by both Athena and Ankara as a precedent; nor is there any valid bioding body of international law on which the International Court at The Hague could easily base an arbitration.

Yet it is obvious that, in the worda of a diplomat who has long observed this scene: "The Aegean is an indispenaable part of both Turkey and Greece. It cannot be annexed to one or the other." Were either nation so foolish as to seek to exclude or throttle the

The Albee Theater in Brooklyn Awaits Last Audience: A Wrecking Crew

By MARCIA CHAMBERS

Jan. 19, 1925: In the audience were Al Jolson, Eddie Cantor and Ed Wynn. On stage were "Bojangles" Bill Robin-son, Smith and Dale and others. It was the opening day of the Albee Theater in Brooklyn, described then as "the most beautiful theater in the world." Next January, It is to go under the wrecker's ball to make way for a $16 million shopping mall.

With the talkies in the wings, E.F. Albee, who had a reputation of being a shrewd businessman, designed the theater as the consummate vaudeville and movie palace. The grand hall was to contain Italian marble stairways. paintings from his private collection three dazzling crystal chandeliers and a 40-by-70-foot silver gray, gold and black Maffersdorf rug, made in Czechoslovakia on the largest loom in the world. The Albee would offer the best in vaudeville to go with its first-run

"Brooklyn was as good as New York in those days," recalled Joe Smith of the comedy act of Smith and Dale. He is 92 years old and lives at the Actors Fund Home in Englewood, N.J.

In the 20's, Brooklyn's downtown was a thriving vaudeville-movie district. There were, among other theaters, the Fox, the Tivoli, the Orpheum and the Paramount.

There will be no mourners at the demise of the Albee. Vaudeville died years ago and television hurt the movies. But most telling, the Albee's andience of middle-class Brooklynites diminished. In recent years, the 3,200 seats in the theater, which closed Sept. 21, were often empty. Potential patrons did not like walking the streets of downtown Brooklyn after 7 P.M.

The R.K.O. Albee did manage to hold on for several years by adapting its programs to the times. In the 50's and the early 60's, it ratered to teen-agers who came for rock 'n' roll shows on Saturday afternoons or for a movie date on Saturday night. In the 70's, it showed black exploitation films.

By the end of the decade, the DeKalh Avenue site is to contain a shopping complex with 80 stores, a garage and a mall. To attract development, the city has granted a tax abatement to the Rentar Development Corporation. 'Greatest Amusement Buy'

While bits and pieces of the Albee will be on view at the mail, they will only begin to suggest the splendor that loe Smith remembers vividly, Thinking back 50 years, he said:

"I remember opening day at the Albee. The show began with a dog act, and nobody was paying any attention. It was very beautiful. And finally, when the next couple of acts came on and nobody watched, the manager walked out on stage and told the audience, 'O.K., oo matinea today—just look around.'"

In those days, the Albee's audience was diverse, Mr. Smith said in a recent interview. "They even came from Manhattan," be said, to pay 50 or 75 cents for what the playbill of the day adver-tised as the "greatest amusement buy in the world."

Smith and Dale (Charles Dale died in 1971) performed their well-known Dr. Kronkite comedy act across the nation and often in Brooklyn. "The Orpheum on a Monday afternoon was a tough proposition," Mr. Smith remembered. "The crowd could be terrible. The boys in the gallery would throw pennies and boo if they didn't like the act. But we were always

No one lived out of a steamer trunk at the Albee. The traveling vaudevillian was offered an array of services at the theater-a laundry, a tailor shop, a nursery for children, several kitchenettes, a room with a pool table, a lounge and a safe to store valuables. The backstage area is grim now. The 20 dressing rooms, each with tile bath and shower, each named after a state, are dark, empty and musty. One of the lounges for the performers contained soiled matresses, from more recent days when a group of prostitutes took up quarters backstage. Sometimes, a room was used by policeman to catch some sleep while on duty, "cooping," as it has become known.

Auditorium Stripped of Seats

The great stage is a maze of wires intertwined with tinsel and swatches of maroon velvet ripped from the stage curtain. The auditorium, with its 60foot-high domed ceiling, is stripped of its seats and littered with beer cans. R.K.O., from Which Rentar bought the Albee for $1.6 million, has removed the seats, the chandeliers and the sculp-

But Dennis Ratner, a 31-year-old vice president of Rentar, said that some items would be saved for the mall and the Brooklyn Museum; a brass ticket booth, a cue flip-box that was used to announce vaudeville performers and several brass grillworks. And the marble stairways in the grand hall? They will be smashed and used as landfill.

A demand for amnesty by the police union for officers accused of disorderly behavior in their contract demonstrations this fall was rejected by Police Commissioner Michael J. Codd as "totally unrealistic." He charged that the union's protracted labor dispute with the city was impairing the morale and performance of the force. As an example he cited a decline in issuance of traffic tickets. [1:4-5.]

DAME FLORA, 98, DIES; MACLEOD CLAN CHIEF

Only Such Woman Leader Lived in 700-Year-Old Castle on Skye and Often Visited Scots in U.S.

ABERDEEN, Scotland, Nov. S (Reuters)

—Dame Flora MacLeod of MacLeod, the only woman chief of a Scotlish clan, died yesterday at the age of 9g. Her grandson, John, will become 29th chief of the clan. Dame Flora had two daughters. She was staying at the home of another grandson near here when she died.

Quick Mind and Witty Tongue By JOHN McOUISTON

Dame Flora MacLeod spent most of her time in a 700-year-old castle on the Isle of Skye off western Scotland, a castle complete with dungeon, most snd central

As an elderly woman, she bore a great resemblance to Queen Victoria. Her eyes were bright, and she had a quick mind and a witty tongue. As clan chief, she often traveled to the United States, meeting many of the 25,000 MacLeods estimated to live in his country.

Dame Flora was born Feb. 3, 1878, at No. 10 Downing Street, the traditional Bath, had been Under Secretary for Scotland and Registrar General. When touring, she would often travel with her twio grandsoos, John MacLeod and Patrick Wolrige-Gordon. John changed his name to MacLeod during his tens in preparation for becoming chieftain. He was born 40 minutes earlier than Patrick.

Dame Flora, long s widow, had been married to Hubert Walter, a foreign and political correspondent of The Times of London. She had two daughters, Joan, mother of the twins, and Alice.

She will be buried near the castle.

Set Up by Albany Department

By RICHARD J. MEISLIN

The State Education Department intends to allow only nrganizations that The woman demanded to know why provide some year-round, neighborhoodoriented service to distribute food to needy children in next year's federally financed Summer Food Service Program, larger institution. Dr. Hnrner attempted the administrator of the program said

> Dr. Thomes Calvin, the program administrator, also said that his department bad proposed that it take over almost completely the bidding process through which contracts are granted to caterers by the food-distributing organizations.

These proposals, which are included in a management plan now being reviewed for its legality by the Education Department's general counsel, are designed in part to solve the problems of extensive mismanagement, waste and theft that plagued the 1976 program.

plagued the 1976 program.

They were outlined yesterday at a meeting of state and Federel officials involved in planning the 1977 program. The proposals will be officially presented for approval to the State Board of Regents at its December session.

In response to a barrage of questions from Representative Frederick W. Richmond, Democrat of Brooklyn, who called yesterday's meeting, Dr. Calvin said that, despite more stringent administrative controls, inadequate funding would hamper his ability to monitor the program next year. The United States Department of Agri culture, which finances the program, provides administrative financing to the state at the rate of 2 percent of the total cost of the program. The 1977 program is expected to cost about $70 million, Dr. Calvin said. At that rate, Dr. Calvin said he would be able to hire 200 field monitors to oversee food distribution sites in New York City, and he added: "I don't feel that 200 monitors are enough,"

The state is trying to avoid a repetition of the problems it encountered in last year's program, which included numerous documented cases of theft from food-distribution sites, repeated questions from legislators and others over suspicious relationships between food-distribution sponsors and their caterers, and extensive criticism of the state for mismanagement. The 1976 program is known to be under

Decline in the Population Of Jersey Cities Continues, Census Bureau Reports

By ROBERT REINHOLD

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5-While New York City seems to bave arrested its long population decline, the nearby cities of New Jersey have continued to lose residents at a heavy rate, according to new estimates raleased today by the Census

Altogether, the six suburban counties that fan out to the west of New York City—Bergen, Hudson, Essex, Union, Middlesex and Passaic-lost about 1 percent of their residents over the year ended July 1, 1975. This represented en acceleration of the rate of loss since the last census in 1970.

Howaver, the population of other areas of the state, mainly the fast-developing coastal counties of Cape May and Ocean, continued to swell, although at somewhat reduced rates compared with the first few years of this decade.

As a whole, highly industrialized and suburban New Jersey—by far the most densely populated state was estimated to bave lost 6,000 residents in the year, bringing its population to 7,316,000. As of the lest census, in April 1970, the offi-cial count was 7,121,112.

The New Jersey figures contrast with similar estimates for New York made last summer. Those figures suggested thet nost parts of New York, particularly Manhattan, were recovering from the nut-flow of population and jobs that bad so weakened the city's economy.

The New Jersey figures, based on estimates, do not support bopes that efforts to revive decaying Newark bave yat borne fruit. The populetion of Essex County, which includes Newark, dropped by 9,000 in the year, or about 1 percent. The new figures are based not on an actual head count, which will not be conducted again until 1980, but on complex calculations using passenger-vehicle registrations, employment figures, hous-ing units, tax raturns, birth and death statistics and other data known to vary with population.

In addition to Essex, Union County, which includes Elizabeth, also declined fense effort to suppress as evidence in by 1 percent However, Hudson, the counfense effort to suppress as evidence in ty closest to New York City, dropped finding of two cartridges in Mr. Carter's by only three-tenths of I percent, someautomobile. The trial is expected to re- what less than the eight-tenths of 1 percent everage annual drop it had suffered since 1970. With 973 residents per square mile of land area, New Jersey is 16 times as densely populated as the United States as a whole (61 per square mile) and two and a half times as dense as New York State (379).

The new census report, entitled "Estimates of the Population of New Jersey Counties and Metropolitan Areas: July 1, 1974 and 1975," (Current Population Reports Series P-26, No. 75-30), is available for 35 cents from the Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402.

A Night in a Squad Car Out of 'Two-Four': Troubled Partners, Trouble in the Streets

By MARY BREASTED

Life in a police radio car is a journey between tedium and terror, It is heartburn and cigarettes mixed with too many cups of take-out coffee. It is holding a frant-seat on the world, manning a mobile information booth, driving a taxi for the destitute and being a slow-moving target for the deranged.

It is a state of readiness, a series of interrupted conversations. And, always, it is the inner aar poised for that crackling of the city's nerve ends that is the radio dispatcher down in "Central" where the 911 calls come in.

Detective Third Grade Alfred Genova and Police Officer Harold Dice have been partners in a radio car on Manhattan's West Side for so long, they feel as if they are blood relatives. Officer Dice is godfather to the Genovas' youngest child, and be calls his partner's mother-in-law "Ma."

Quite tall, 6 feet 3 inches in his stocking feet, Officer Dice is 26 and looks it. His face is smooth, bis cheeks faintly rosy and his eyes are bright and clear. Officer Genova, who stands S feet 9 inches, has dark rings under bls eyes and bair that is going prematurely gray. He is 32, but he looks 42. Officer Dice defers to his partner on "jobs," re-sponses to radio calls.

A Happy Partnership

They are perfect partners, and they bate to be separated. Both Queens residents, they commute to and from work together. They won the department's coveted honorable mention citatioo together. Officer Genova makes jokes about their being in love.

Their captain calls them two of the best men in the 24th Precinct, but in many ways they are typical of New York City policemen. They are sons of hlue-collar workers, firm believers in the work ethic and they say they still work as hard as they can at being good police officers. But they are discouraged and losing enthusiasm.

The new work schedu recent angry police demonstrations— and led to the Patrolman's Benevolent Association's rejection Thursday of the city's proposed contract—have disrupted their lives and made them feel that the city, which asks them to keep the peace, does not appreciate them.

But some of their discouragement bes built up over the years. For, with or without the new chart, or schedule, they are subject to dangers of their job and frustrating changes of schedule. In uniform they feel themselves isolated, conspicuous A recent Friday was their ninth straight day of work, they said, because the chart change gave them only one day off between five-day tours of duty, and their last day off had been consumed by an obligatory court appearance, for which they were paid.

They bought coffee at a doughnut shop on Broadway and drove to a favorite resting spot, 107th Street and Riverside Drive, where the yellows and fading greens of Riverside Park trees were luminous in the late afterooon

Lighting up cigarettes, they talked about their family backgrounds, and that inevitably led to discussion of a police officer's unpredictable schedule. Every arrest, they said, meant a disrup-tion—a schedule changa or a day off spent in court.

"You can't socialize," Detective Genova said. "Say, you get invited to a wedding three months ahead, and then wedding three months ahead, and then the time comes, and you have to gn to court. Your wife wants to go, and most of the time abe goes by herself. Harry's wife, she couldn't take that."

"We went out before," Officer Dice said "She know what it would be like.

Officer Dice is now divorced.
"After a while," he added, "all your friends are police officers. Because the old crowd - you just don't see

Officer Dice put the blue-and-white car in gear. Detective Genova told "Cen-tral" they were resuming patrol, and slowly they began to cruise.

Heterogeneous Population

The 24th Precinct, less than a square mile in size, runs from Riverside Drive to Central Park West and from 86th to 110th Street. It bas a population of about 116,000 that ranges in wealth from those in the Eldorado at 300 Central Park West, where moothly rents may exceed $2,000, to destitute residents of single-room occupancy hotels, who live off Social Security checks.

In the northeastero section of the precinct, there are tenements and walkups crowded with poor Hispanic people and blacks. "We get a homicide a week up there," one of the sergeants said at a later point. "And sometimes it's like civil war, with the Dominicans on one side shooting at the Puerto Ricans on the other side of the street," Officer

Dice added. The patrol car had turned onto Broadway, where the partners waved to a store owner. who waved back and

"He's been hit about seven times this year," Detective Genova said quietly.
The talk turned to department citations and medals, which both partners bore above their shields. Detective Genova, who is much decorated, had been promoted to bis present position as a reward for his work. This meant about $2,400 more than a uniformed man with the same seven years' experience, or $18,500 a year. Officer Dice earns $16,000 a year. Neither figure includes

The partners recalled bow they had won their bonnrable mention citatinns. They had gone to assist a wounded officer, who, in turn, had answered a 'domestic dispute" call.

The suspect or "perp" (short for "perpetrator" in police jargon), was an armed state probation officer who had gone berserk in his bome. He was ulti-mately captured unharmed, but Detective Genova was wounded in the hand during the incident.

Racing Off to the Scene

The "domestic dispute" call is among the most dreaded of all, the policemen said, for it summons them to situations nf unpredictable violence with victims who are seldom grateful.

It was exactly S:30 P.M. when the radio dispatcher announced: "Twelve West 107th Street, Male trying to throw a female out the window. Fifth floor, bedroom." They fell silent. Officer Dice. the shouted, pointing westward over the rooftops. One after the other, the two partners mnunted tha wall between ronfs, band-springing, legs to the side. The weeping young woman came out onto the roof, holding her shoe in one hand, bolding ber jaw in the other. Her lip was bleeding, and her hair was

bedraggled. Child Left Alone

Soon the two partners gave up their search. Slowly they walked downstairs with the woman, who they learned was 2I years old.

She explained, through her swollen lips, that ber boyfriend had come home drunk, they had fought, be bad beaten her with a broom handle and bashed ber against the bedroom win-dow, breaking the glass, terrifying ber and stirring someone—the call was anonymous—to phone the police.
"We'll take you to the bospital,"

Detective Genova told the woman. He and bis partner waited while she went upstairs to fetch ber 2-year-old child, who had been alone in the apartment during the chase.

Thank God you came," she said, settling into the back of the car, her daughter's tiny hands clinging to her. She had been living with the man for three weeks before he beat her, she said. "Why do you stay with a man like that?" Detective Genova asked. He got no answer. The officers brought her to the emergency ward at St. Luke's Hospital, quickly told her they would escort her back to the apartment, should she be afraid to return alone, and theo they

Twice in the next hour the partners were called to 105th Street between Columbus and Manhattan Avenues in pursuit of a "man with a gun." They found nothing.

The block's stoop dwellers, blacks and Puerto Ricans, looked at the police car boatilely. "We were shot at on this block a few years ago." Detective Genova said. It was a block buzzing with drug agles. Later, when the officers returned to the precinct to file a report oo a street they again encountered the young woman of 107th Street. She asked them to .. escort her home.

She had no keys, so Officer Dice had to wnrry the latch back with his knife. The young woman gathered clothes for the night, planning to stay with a relative. Officer Genova played with her daughter, hiding a button in his big fists, making ner guess where it the refrigerator. "For my funeral," the young woman joked bitterly. Detective Genova carried her child down the stairs and the partners of-fered to take her to a cab or a subway station. Slowly the car pulled up the block, and just at the corner, a young man in a light blue shirt came dashing alongside, looking into the police car.

"That's him," she said calmly.

. "Do you want us to arrest him?" asked Detectiva Genova. "Yes," she said. "Well, not exactly. Just to tell bim to take his things and

There was a pause. "Yes," she said.

Handcuffed and Taken Away So Rocky Parker, 25, frightened, weeping, saying, "I haven't done noth-ing wrong," was handcuffed, driven the station in another squad car and held for the night.

Officer Genova, holding his prisoner's elbow, was shouting frantically:

"You have the right to remain silent, do you understand that?" You have the right to have an attorney present—"

"If somebody bas what?" came a voice through the din, the volce of Police Officer Frank Cohen, who was answering the phone behind the desk. "If somebody has sex with your dog?" he said in amazement. A moment later. he cupped the receiver and said aloud, "I've been a police officer for 20 years.

When Rocky Parker was finally arraigned at 6:1S P.M., the day after his arrest, he pleaded not guilty and was paroled in his own recognizance. Because of the Parker arrest, Detective Genova's shift was changed to an 8 A.M.-to-4 P.M. tour. He reached bome in Queens at 12:50 A.M. Saturday and reported to work seven bours later.

He was assigned to fnot patrol for two hours, then to tha courthouse at 100 Centre Street Sixty-two cases were

The case was already added to the precinct's list of bitter comic stories. On Sunday night, Officer Dice left work early, with his sergeant's permission, to go to the hospital where Detective Genova's brother-in-law was dying.

"To me," Detective Genova had said, brooding during a long wait at 100 Centre Street, "that's the most important thing, your family."

They left, though they did not phrase it exactly so, isolated from the rest of the world, from everyone except friends on the force, their relatives and maybe a few old, old friends who did not see them in uniform. Once, on that Friday evening they had patrolled together, a woman had waved to them and smiled from a van. "Must be out-of-towners," Officer Genova had said. But the van had then pulled ahead, revealing its license plate.

"New York," he said. "I don't believe it!"

"Well," said his partner brightly, "New York'a a big state."

Giorgio Sant'Angelo threw a passel of boisterous peasants out of his runway the other day and helped get the spring season on Seventh Avenue off to a rousing start.

They cavorted in the clean white space that is part of his new studio at 20 West 57th Street, a bit off Seventh Avenue, but spiritually the same.

The girls in their tiers and flounces, lacings and ruffles were accompanied by male models who were quietly attired. Sant'Angelo also designs men's clothes, but they baven't joined the back-to-earth movement.

So what if they wrapped a contrasting sash around the top of their bath-ing trunks? Their daytime attire ran to a beige suit and matching shirt, or

Tips for Plants With Growing Pains

By OLIVE EVANS

"My bromeliads are rotting," said Phyllis De Lemos. "My plants went into shock when I moved," complained Vicki Staple. "My coleus always die, and I don't know why," lamented Bonnie Smith.

The three young women from Queens had come to the right place for advice: the Annual Houseplant Societies Show and plant sale at the New York Horticultural Society. It will be open to the plant-loving public to-day and tomorrow and will include a free plant clinic.

Yesterday, people were dropping in on their lunch hours, or coming over on the subway from Queens or Brooklyn or the Bronx, some carrying ailing plants in shopping bags.
As for the plants in the show, they were doing fine, proudly displaying their often exotic charms in an enchanting assortment of tableaus. The prize specimens (including a pomegranate with fruit, nurtured under lights) were grown by members of the local chapters of six plant societies: begonia, oromeliad, gloxinia and gesneriad, African violet, cacti and succulents and

"And you get better light, without heat," she said. "A starting setup can be done quite inexpensively."

The red-eyed tree frog, the geckos, the spring peepers and the poison-arrow frog seemed to be thriving in the authentic tropical environment of the Vicarium, a high attraction at the characteristics.

Lessie Williams, who lives up near Yonkers, already has 75 plants, and she was browsing among the African violets. "This is one I'm not familiar with." she said, sounding tempted.
What does she do when her plants have problems?

"Like anything you're really interested in. you have to get acquainted to know what's wrong with it," she said. "I just put a sick plant aside, like in the hospital, and examine it to see if there are any insects or maybe too much water. But I don't treat it

For Dan Greenfield, who lives in a hotel room, the show was for more than browsing, which he was doing among the bromeliads.

"My religion is a thing called nature," he said. "How can you describe this?" he asked, pointing to a lush bromeliad that was putting forth a spiked, flame-tinged flower. "Doesn't it look like it was mada by a man, waxed and polished? But nature did a better lob." He sighed. "omeday, if I get rich!" buy lots of land . . . mean-

Airlines in Battle of the Booze; Woo Business With Free Drinks

On the passenger lets, it's liquor on the house once more as East Coast airlines fighting each other in a spreading "amenities wer" turn again to ofing passengers free dr crease business.

National Airlines yesterday became the latest carrier to escalate the fray that it began several weeks ago by offeringg free m-flight movies on most flights between New York and Florida. Eastern Air Lines and American Air-lines quickly followed suit, also offer-

Free Bagels Offered

Then, Thursday, word leaked out that Delta—which said it would not show movies — would start to give drinks to coach passengers. Eastern announced the same day it would match Delta's offer. Delta came back with offers of free bagels and cream cheese for passen-gers boarding its flights between New York and Florida.

Now National has weighed in with its free drinks. "We had no choice," a spokesman said.

The yes-frills competition comes two years after the airlines fought a debilitating "great booze war" in the skies. That struggle was set off by Delta's decision to start serving free champagne and died out after the carriers' scramble to all serve free liquor left no one better off-except, perhaps the drinking passenger.

Airlines Don't Like It Airline spokesmen acknowledged their distate for the latest war.

"This giveaway scramble has already exceeded ridiculous proportions in light of the economics of airline operations today," said Russell L. Ray Jr., a marketing vice president for Eastern. 'There is simply no way that any one carrier can hope to benefit from such outmoded marketing stunts."

"You know what's going to bappen," a Delta official said. "The [Civil Acronautics] Board's going to get fed up and throw all this stuff out."

Companies and 7 Officers Used Fraudulent Information to Sell Desert Land, U.S. Asserts

By ARNOLD H. LUBASCH

A major trial opened yesterday on charges that a real estate group conducted a swindle designed to sell undeveloped desert land in New Mexico to thousands of investors throughout the country for a total of $200 million.

The 10 defendants named in the 80count Federal indictment are the Amrep Corporation of 16 West 61st Street in Manhattan, two subsidiaries called Rio Rancho Estates Inc., and the ATC Realty Corporation, and seven top officials of the three corporations.

Their loog-awaited trial got under way in Federal District Court in Manhattan with the prosecutor, Patricia M. Hynes, declaring that the Government would prove that the defendants had resorted to high-pressure sales techniques at "free dinners" to persuade investors to bny land in an area known as Rio Rancho

Miss Hynes an Assistant United States Attorney, told the jury of six men and six women that "false, misleading and fraudulent" information was used to deceive prospective buyers into believing that the land represented a safe invest-ment that would yield extremely high

Beginning in 1961, she said, the defendants began to purchase a total of 91,000 acres of "raw desert land" at about $180 an acre, then subdivided the area into $6,000 lots and sold most of the lots as half-acre "homesites" for up to $11,800

The defendants have succeeded in selling 77,000 lots to 45,000 buyers from 37 states for $170 million so far, the prosecutor told the jury, and they are seeking to sell the rest of the lots to bring the sales to a $200 million total.

A defense lawyer, Stanley S. Arkin, said in an opening statement to the jury that the defendants bad invested about $100 million in Rio Rancho to make it "a thrivlog, prosperous, happy community" that now contained several thousand resi-

Mr. Arkin denied that high-pressure tactics weje used to sell the land, contended that buyers were given up to six months to cancel a purchase for any rea-son and said that the defendants had sold the land for a "fair profit" and that "it's not desert land at all."

By VARTANIG G. VARTAN

The Dow Jones industrial average, reflecting price declines in Eastman Kodak and the International oil issues among its roster of blue-chip components, sank more than 17 points yesterday to register its third sharpest decline of 1976. Wall Street analysts, some of admittedly startled by the size of the oneday decline, tended to attribute the setback to further indications of a slowing economy and uncertainties surrounding the policies to be followed by Presidentelact Jimmy Carter.

The Dow plunged 17.37 points to close at 943.07, its lowest level of the week.

"What you really saw today was the market dropping under its own weight," one technical analyst said. "It was a matter of bids being pulled back rather than real selling pressure."

The declines in the international oilsone of the market's basically strong groups this year—was attributed to un-certainties beclouding this group. These include the size of a price increase expected next month by Middle East oil-producing nations and the attitude to be taken toward international oils by the Carter Administration.

Exxon dropped 11/2 to 49%, while Standard Oil of California fell 11/8 to 34.

Both stocks were selling ex-dividend.

Texaco, the most active issue, eased % to 26, while Cootinental Oil dropped 11½ to 34% in active trading.

The soft-drink group was affected adversely after some members of a Food and Drug Administration advisory panel questioned the safety of cola drinks containing caffeine. Pepsico fell 43% to 77% and Coca-Cola moved down 31% to 77% and set a low for the year. and set a low for the year.

Patents: New Camera May Change Production of 3-D Motion Pictures

By STACY V. JONES

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5-Two brothers who run the Marks Polarized Corporation in Whitestone, Queens, have invented a camera that they believe will revolutionize the art of threedimensional motion-picture production. The camera has also been discussed for possible use in 3-D televisioo.

Patent 3,990,087 was granted this week for the camera to Alvin M. Marks, president of the company, and Morti-mer Marks, vice president. They both took part in a New York meeting of engineers last month at which television 3-D was demonstrated, using a Marks optical device called the Polarator and a General Electric high-intensi-

The oew camera, oamed the Depix, is made by placing a converter in froot of the single lens of a conventional movie camera. Right and left pictures of an object are taken from two points of view, separated horizontally, and placed one above the other vertically within a single frame on a standard film. Alvin Marks says, with the Depix camera, three-dimensional photography is accomplished with the same facility as staodard photography.

The company has begun to lease Depix cameras to motion-picture companies and producers.

George J. Doundoulakis of North Bellmore was granted Patent 3,989,012 this week for the engine. He says that two new features-freeing the piston from its direct engagement with the crank shaft and varying the compression ratio—enable the Tri-Rotor to make use of beat normally lost in the cooling system and the exhaust, thus saving fuel.

The free piston also permits quick expansion of the combustion chamber upon ignition of fuel, a process that converts the heat energy into kioetic energy before it has a chance to he transferred and forever lost on the relatively cool cylinder walls.

For each full rotation of the crankshaft, the Tri-Rotor delivers four power strokes—eight times the power stroke frequency of the cooventional four stroke engine. In Mr. Doundoulakis's words, the Tri-Rotor engine uses its displacement volume eight times as often as the convectional piston en-

The Energy Research and Develop-ment Administration is evaluating the Tri-Rotor design and making a computer analysis of its potential performance. According to this week's patent, the concept can be applied in the design of (besides gasoline engines) steam, bydrostatic and diesel engines, fluid measurlog devices and pumps. Personal Finance: Thrift Units Get Inflow as Other Yields Fall

By RICHARD PHALON

Watching depositors lina up at a new branch office the other day, Vincent J. Quinn, president of the Brooklyn Savings Bank, was more than ever certain that bright days lie ahead for thrift institutions. "At these rates," he said, "we're the best investment buy around."

Savings banks? An investment buy? It sounds like a contradiction in terms, but the way money is flowing back-into the thrift institutions suggests that many investors agree with Mr. Quinn.

In September, for example, the latest mooth for which figures are available, some $110 million in oew deposits filtered into the nation's mutual savings banks. Savings and loan associations are doing well, too—all at a time when in-dividual investors are heavy sellers of atocks, and abandoning money-market mutual fonds that until fairly recently were all the rage.

The optimism of Mr. Quinn and other thrift industry executives is based on the contention that yield-conscious short and intermediate term investors searching for an optimum combination of high return and safety just doo't have as many places to put their money as they used to. Investors don't have as many places because sbort-term interest rates have come down hard and fast, the result of a switch io monetary policy. Hoping to infuse new energy into an upturn that many economists believe is run-ning out of momentum, the Federal Reserve has pumped up the money

As money market rates began to recede to the lowest level in four years, investors who only last spring had been pulling down 7.7 percent on fouryear Treasury notes suddenly in Sep-tember found themselves settling for 6.93 percent.

In the last 60 days rates have been hammered down even lower. Threeyear Treasury notes, for example, are currently returning around 6.25 percent. Government agency bonds, yielding as much as 9 percent or more two years ago, also have settled around the 6 percent mark.

The drop in short and intermediate rates has touched off a scramble for long-term corporate bonds, where yields on such top quality AAA rated issues as the American Telephone and Telegraph Company's 8.75 percent bonds maturing in 2000 are generating a current return of 8.3 percent.

Much of the demand for such issues has come from institutional investors, particularly commercial banks loaded with cash that business seems in no great rush to borrow-

Eager to lock in high returns that they think may not be seen again for some time, the institutional investors have pushed bond prices through the

The A.T.&T. 8.75's, for example, are trading at a premium of about $56. Prices on issues that came out at the peak of the interest crunch have gone even higher. The Georgia Power 114's of 2005 are selling at a premium of about $140. mium of about $140 a bond.

Those premiums, of course, mean a capital loss if the bonds are held to capital loss if the bonds are field to maturity. Institutions can afford to trade off those potential losses against high current yields. They try hard to match their losses against capital gains at good tax advantage.

Individual investors don't always have that luxury Fouther the company.

have that luxury. Further, the corpo-rate bond market has moved ao far that some brokers are reloctant to recommend it to investors looking for a good mix of safety and yield.

That appears to be one of the reasons deposits at the thrift institutions are beginning to pick up after a loog period of drain. They are paying a basic 6.5 percent a year on money left on deposit for a year on out to 7.75 percent on cash left on tap for six years or more.

Thus, for the first time in almost four years, according to the National Association of Mutual Savings Banks, "ceiling rates oo savings bank deposits [are higher] than yields available oo both Treasury and Federal agency obligations of similar maturity."

Liquidity, on the other hand, can be something of a problem. Money taken out of a thrift institution term account before maturity causes a stiff negative.

before maturity carries a stiff penalty
—the loss of 90 days' interest and reversion to the lowest rate on the money withdrawn.

The thrift institutions' major competition at the moment may be the intermediate corporate market. Such AAA rated comparatively short ootes as those of the First National Boston Corporation and the Manufacturers Hanover Corporation 7.6's of 1981, for example, are trading at a little under par and yielding 7.8 percent. This rate is slightly higher than can be received on similar maturities in a savings bank and may offer somewhat better

In general, however, people fleeing to the snug harbor of thrift institution term accounts seem to be operating oo a standard market maxim—the higher the return, the greater the risk.

AMEX'S QUARTER NET OFF; RISE IN 9 MONTHS IS 111.4%

The American Stock Exchange announced yesterday that its third-quarter net income declined 87.5 percent. For the first three quarters of 1976, however, its earnings rose 111.4 percent. In the July-September period, earnings of the exchange amounted to $7,000, compared with $56,000 in the year-ago period. Paul Kolton, chairman, said that the net income in the 1976 quarter was affected by nonrecurring development costs for an options market system and a Western Union rate increase that took effect on July !

For the nine months, net income to taled $1.2 millioo, with $571,000 in the comparable 1975 period. Mr. Kolton noted that the increase reflected heavier equity and options volume, higher listing revenues and greater income from additional communication devices in service. Amex stock trading volume during the third quarter dropped slightly to 120.5 million shares from 121.6 million in the age of 17,659, in the 1975 period.

The view that income distribution since the late 1940's has remained stable, or has become slightly more nearly equal, is based on data supplied by the Census Bureau's annual Current Population Survey. The data includes all money wages and salaries, net in-come from self-employment, Social Se-curity income, property income, such as interest and dividends, government cash transfer benefits, and a number of private cash receipts such as pri-vate pensions and alimony. Economists agree that this is the best time series on United States in-come distribution, although flaws in the C.P.S. figures are overwhelming. They exclude, for example, all forms of nonmoney income, including the benchits o fealth and of government transfers in kind (such as food stamps). They ignore capital gains. And, according to Rutgers Professor Taussig, they seriously underreport total money in-

Nevertheless, using this material, Professor Taussig calculates that the income share of the top 5 percent of all families and unrelated individuals (and the share of each of the various remaining sectors) has varied hardly at all between 1947 and 1951, on average, and between 1970 and 1974, on age, and between 1970 and 1972, on average.

This apparent stability however, masks a number of shifting trends. For example, the earnings of individuals (as distinct from families or households) have become slightly more unequal in the postwar period. This was documented for income of individuals from 1977 to 1970 by Paul T. Schultz. from 1947 to 1970 by Paul T. Schultz of Yale University and for salaries of male workers from 1958 to 1970 by Peter Henle in an article for the Monthly Labor Review in 1972.

Much of this shift in earnings inequality can be explained by the changing demography of the labor force.

With more teen-agers and women working and with more individuals setting up their own households, measured individual incomes have declined, although this does not imply a drop in individual well-being or more inequality in the distribution of well-being.

On the other hand, Government programs substantially decrease the amount of income inequality in any given year. According to a recent book by Robert D. Plotnick and Felicity Skidmore of the Institute for Research on Poverty, 33 percent of households in 1965 classified as "poor" were taken out of poverty by cash transfers by the Government

That proportion had increased to 44 percent by 1972.

When taxes as well as spending programs are taken into consideration, however, the distribution of the net income of American households remained about the same in the postwar period, in spite of the huge growth of government in those years.

According to a forthcoming book by Morgan Reynolds of Texas A&M University and Eugene Smolensky of the University of Wisconsin, "In any year for which the calculation is made,

Rapid Growth Hailed

Many of the major mail-order food companies report that they distributed more catalogues this fall than ever before. Swiss Colony mailed more than 15 million catalogues, up from 12 million last year, and will soon be sending nut about 65,000 packages of cheese, meats and pastries a day.

"It boggles your mind," said a spokesman for privately owned Swiss

CREDIT TO CONSUMERS UP BY $1.48 BILLION IN MONTH

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5 (AP)—Consum-ers expanded their debt loans at an in-creasing rate in September, the Federal Reserve Board reported today.

The Reserve said consumer installment credit outstanding at the end of the month totaled $1.48 billion more than in The advance compared with a $1.4 billion growth in August and left total consumer credit at $172.9 billion, or 9.8 percent ahead of the same month ı year ago.

The Reserve's figures showed that automobile credit expanded by $605 million, or slightly below August's $621 million growth. Bank credit card borrowing grew faster, by $168 million compared with $36 million the previous month. All told, consumers borrowed $15.8 bil-

"Americans own more and more things, and gift giving becomes more difficult each year for grandmothers with loads of grandchildren, executives with clients and just ordinary individuals," said Robert Barth, president of the Wisconsin Cheeseman in Sun Prairie, Wis. "These are gifts that you know someone can use and will like."

Along with this advantage, however, is the disadvantage that many nf the food items are sold by mail at far higher prices than they normally would be

Figi's of Marshfield, Wis., which specializes in cheeses and meats offers nine red grapefruits (which sell for $1.66 at Grand Union in the New York metropolitan area) for $9.95. Pepperidge Farm offers a kit including a baking pan and enough mix to bake two loaves of bread (a kit selling at Grand Union for about $2.25) at a price of $8.50.

What a Buyer Gets "Sure, it's a high price," said John C. Griggs, president of the Pepperidge Farm Mail Order Company, "But with the gift you have a lot of things going for you. There's a company's reputation behind the product, you don't have to put up with fighting crowds at Bloom-ingdale's and you don't have to wrap packages. There's no need to go to the post office to make sure they don't wreck your parcel or worry about whether it will arrive. We take care of everything."

While some shoppers have complained that their cheese arrived moldy or a plant was dead, most of the companies guarantee that their products will reach the destination in good con-dition. Omaha Steaks, for example, packs its frozen meats in dry ice and ships the items in styrofoam containers that keep the food frozen for more than a week. There is a small note on each package cautioning the recipient that it contains a perishable frozen product.

"We don't make the note too prominent, though," explained a spokesman for Omaha Steaks. "It's large enough so someone doesn't keep the package under a Christmas tree, but we don't want to advertise that it's meat. We don't want to encourage theft." As the holidays approach, many people in the mail-order industry are voicing concern that their sales will be affected by the teamsters' strike against United Parcel Service of America Inc. in 15 Eastern states.

Companies who rely on U.P.S. for delivery have turned to regular truckers or the United States Postal Service. Omaha Steaks, which sends about 100,000 packages during a holiday season, said it was sending the parcels this year by first-class mail. As a result, said Frederick J. Simon, executive vice president, Omaha steaks may have to "start charging people for the addition-

Swiss Colony guarantees delivery within one day of a specified date—
"when we don't have a U.P.S. strike." The company recommends that all orders be placed as early as possible this year—no later than the first week of December.

Despite the delivery problems, most food companies remain enthusiastic about their mail-order business. Catalogues allow some firms to offer products that have not sold well in retail

Higher-Priced Items

"Over the years, we developed a number of high-quality products, which have been too high-priced to sell in the supermarket," said Mr. Griggs of Pepperidge Farm. "We tried to sell a two-pound fruit cake that was loaded with Hennessey brandy, but it was $4.50. At Christmas time, supermarkets were selling five-pound fruit cakes for $2, and we just couldn't compete."

Mr. Griggs said catalogues were also a good way to test-market new products since companies could easily determine their popularity. Many consumers, however, stick to heir favorite items every year.

After a few hours of study, Miss Mosher decided against ordering a live lobster, berries from New Zealand or smoked pheasant. Instead, with a sigh of relief, she carefully wrote an order for some fruit, sausages and Wisconsin

Nuveen has specialized in municipal securities for over 78 years, giving us an expertise in the field of tax-exempt securities that is virtually unrivalled.

We have maintained a municipal bond research department for decades. And as our municipal underwriting and trading has grown in volume, so has our research output - in quality as well as quantity.

Our clients have access to hundreds of reports each year covering individual tax-exempt issuers. They have come to value the Nuveen advance reports on new issues which allow ample time for decision making. And, our clients like the way we follow issues until the last bond has been retired.

Nuveen Research is a collective effort, calling upon the experience and insights of people throughout the Nuveen organization. Men and women with 15 to 40 years of experience in all phases of municipal bonds: sales, trading and underwriting.

Nuveen research is one of the reasons we believe that our municipal bond products are the most comprehensive and, quite possibly, the best in the industry.

If you need municipal bond research, you need Nuveen.

This Thanksgiving, let Luchow's cook your goose.

One gander at Luchow's menu and you'll see that goose is good for Thanksgiving dinner. Or, gobble up that other famous holiday bird. Just don't fret about the bill.

Even if you eat goose, the American Express 'Card talks turkey at Luchow's, 110 East 14th St. 477-4860. Free parking.

The American Express Card. Don't leave home without it.

The Treasury announced late yesterday that its $1 billion long-term bond issue—the third part of the $6 billion November refinancing operation conducted this week—was sold at competitive bidding at an average yield of 7.80 percent. Iovestors submitted a total of $1.54 billion of orders for the $1 billion offering, which was a reopening of 7½ percent bonds maturing in 2000 that are already outstanding. Of the $1 billion of the bonds sold, $150 million were purchased by investors oo a noocompetive EGGS (Shall) 2 percent increase in domestic fares effective Jan. 3. The airline said the action had been prompted by the need to offset the continuing climb in operating costs. T.W.A. also said that "the probable increase in COPEC oil prices emphasizes the rapidly escalating costs faced by the industry." The T.W.A. announcement argued that proposed increase was fully justified under rate-making standards currently being applied by the board. It indicated of that a less rigid application of these standards would support a much larger increase. ### An 'Easy Rider' Episode

Having pedaled through parts of Europe, Africa, Asia and Australia, Mr. Morris began the American part of his trip from California in late August. He had little money and no notion about what to expect on his journey eastward. He was quickly jarred into reality in Orofino, Idaho.

"I was biking through on the first full day of the logging festival," Mr. Morris recalled. "It was a Saturday, and all of the people had been drinking there since Friday and had the day off. I was minding my own business on the road when these guys drove up along-side in a pickup truck, put the barrel of a shotgun out the window and pulled the trigger."

Unlike the gun in the movie "Easy Rider," this one was not loaded. But the booting and catcalls from the truck left a striking impression on Mr. Mor-ris for the remainder of his trip.

"I really didn't think things still went oo in the world like that," he delight in playing games with cyclists, like passing on the shoulder of a road, blowing horns or bragging on their citizen-band radios.

'I Couldn't Believe It'

"I had trouble with truckers all across the Midwest." Mr. Morris related, and I didn't know it was intentional until a driver told me about it on Highway 83 in Kansas. He pulled up aloogside and said, Those guys are out to get you.' I couldn't believe it until he said he had been listening to them on his C.B. and they were saying things like 'Watch what I do with this

Mr. Morris also had no control over a Maryland motorist who, failing to notice his bike, cut her car in front of him while making a turn.

"I gianced off the side and saw that the car was going to hit me," he said.
"I put my hand up against the side of the car to keep myself away, and that helped to turn me from the force of the car."

The force of Mr. Morris's language was considerably greater than the ex-tent of his injuries—only a few scrapes on his knee.

Mr. Morris camped out about 75 percent of the nights on his American trip and had the benefit of what he termed "fantastic weather." His survival kit was a long-sleeve shirt, a pair of pants,

Nor had he thought truckers took a pair of socks, two riding shirts, a raincoat, a towel, a swimsuit, a sieeping bag, warmup pants, a tool kit, a toiletry kit, a light mountaineering hammock, a tent and insulated underwear. When actually on the road, he averaged about 140 miles a day in the United States. He had only one blowout. His Thoughts While Alone

Often, while he was traveling alone, Mr. Morris's thoughts fell into a pattern: Where am I going, what will I see, whom will I meet, where will I sleep? He managed a stop in Lawton, Okia., to renew ties with friends he had met in Ethiopia; he also spent two weeks visiting with and working for his broth-er-in-law in Hernando, Miss.

"Drastic changes" in scenery and the diverse character of Small Town, U.S.A., provided the most poignant memories for Mr. Morris, who filled three diaries in his travels and bopes to write a book about his experiences

At Kenny's Restaurant in Hernando, Miss. (population 2,499), the coffee break was more than the 15-minute shop interlude. It was THE social ritual throughout the day, where everyone gabbed and departed, returned and departed, and rolled dice to see who picked up each tab.

Gaining acceptance among strangers, or "cracking the crust." became a daily experience for Mr. Morris, especially # trying to explain his round-the-world pursuit.

"Oh, my goodness!" exclaimed two young women in the student lounge at Kentucky Christian College in Grayson. Ky. (population 2,184). "How did you get across the water?"

"Faith." Mr. Morris replied. He Remembers a Nurse

Mr. Morris figures he fell in love four or five times during his trip. A nurse he met on a ship from Cape Town, South Africa, to Perth, Australia, remains No. 1, despite attractive, bike-conscious women at the University of Montana.

"I never knew there could be so many good-looking girls in Montana," he said.

Mr. Morris covered 21 states, includ-ing Hawaii. What he saw bas convinced him that America can be even more beautiful with a smile and some sincere concern for its travel-minded

"The U.S. has a lot of travelers, but some people can't go because there's no place for them to stay for reasonable rates," be said, citing the relatively inexpensive bostels throughout Eu-

Weather Reports and Forecast

Summary

Snow flurries may contioue in parts of New England, the lake region and upper Missouri Valley today. It will be cloudy across the northern third of the country from New England to the Pacific Northwest, fog is also expected along the coast of the Pacific Northwest. Skies will be clear elsewhere. It will be mild in southern Florida, and from Texas to southern California. Unseasonably cool or cold weather will dominate the rest of the country, although it will be a little warmer from western portions of the Ohio Valley to. the lower Missnuri Valley.

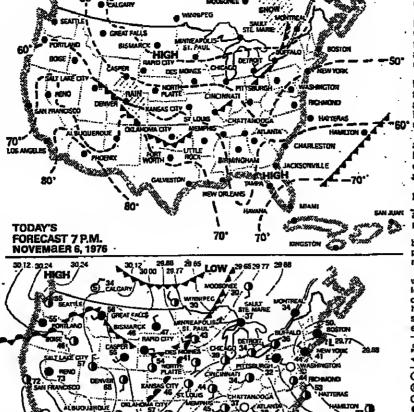

Skies were cloudy yesterday from the Northeast through the lake region and Ohio Valley into Minnesota; snow flurries and showers were scattered from New England to the lake region. Scattered areas of clouds were reported from Montana to Washington, and also along the Pacific Coast. Except for unseasonably warm weather in the Southwest, it was unseasonably cool or cold throughout the country.

Woman Slain in Elevator

Of Her Apartment House

In Brooklyn by a Robber

A 58-year-old Brooklyn woman was shot and killed in the elevator of her apartment building yesterday morning, apparently by a would-be robber who fled empty-handed.

The victim, Verdell Cole of S23 East 108th Street, at Stanley Aveoue lo the Canarsie section, was slain shortly before 7 A.M. as she left her seventh-floor apartment on her way to work in a Brooklyn

The police said Mrs. Cole was alone with her killer on the elevator and was asked anyone with information oo the killed by a single bullet in ber heart. The slayer may have intended to rob her, the Brooklyn homicide task force at 287-0311,

U.S.-Canada

Witnesses said the fleeing gunman was black, about 30 years old, six feet tall weighing about 160 pounds, with a beard and a hlack and white checkered coat. Mrs. Cole, who lived alone, was de-

Mrs. Cole, who lived alone, was described by neighbors as a gentle, hardworking and deeply religious woman who attended church regularly and had resided in the huilding for many years.

"She didn't bother anybody," said one neighbor. "She was gentle, sweet and lovely." Other neighbors, noting that there were no indications that Mrs. Cole had resisted her killer, called the slaying a senseless tragedy.

If national ratings had been available

Interest among viewers nationally was decidedly higher for all three of Mr. Carter's half-hour presentations between 8 and II P.M. Monday night than for those of President Ford, which immediately followed the Carter telecasts on each of the networks.

Mr. Carter and Mr. Ford had purchased alternate half-hours on ABC, NBC and CBS, in that order, each for a single prepared program that was repeated throughout the night.

Consistently Higher

Although the entertainment competition on the other channels was approximately equal for both candidates when their programs were televised, Mr. Carter con-sistently drew higher ratings than Pres-ident Ford. In television, that signifies greater popularity.

The total rating for Mr. Carter's three broadcasts was 34.2, while that for Mr. Ford was 25.3. Given an average of 1.4 adult viewers a bousehold for political programs—an average arrived at by the Nielseo Company for the debates and earlier political commercials—Mr. Carter's Monday night audience of people 18 years or older came to 34,140,000 and Mr. Ford's to 25,300,000. The voting the next day showed more than 40 million for Mr. Ford.

At 8 P.M., in what amounted to a tele-vision atraw poll, Mr. Carter had 14 percent of the aodience on ABC, while Mr. Ford bad 13 percent in the next half-hour. Mr. Carter's advantage was greater at 9 P.M. on NBC when he scored 16 percent to President Ford's 11 percent. Finally, at 10 P.M. on CBS, the Carter share of case.

The Nielsen ratings for the final tele-| the audience was 25 percent and the Ford

An official of the Nielsen Company said -foretold the results at the polls the foi- that there was no denying that the ratings had some validity as political indica-tors but added that the company did not want to be represented as being in the husioess of taking political polls.

Some Shortcomings

He noted that the ratings had some the day after Jimmy Carter and President shortcomings as indexes of political preference, citing the possibility that contelled to the preferences of the electronic preference on the preferences of the electronic president for might have chosen not the president for might have chosen not president for might have chos

However, Nielsen is developing a sys-tem that will make possible national rat-ing reports for all programs the following morning.

The system is expected to be in opera-tion next year, which means that the Election eve ratings may be included among the significant public opinion polls in 1980, whether the Nielsen Company wants them to or not.

"Animals are such agreeable friends they ask no questions, they pass no criticisms." (G. Eliot)

And they can't ask for help. So we must do it for them.

We urgently need your help in providing for the thousands of needy animal friends that are sheltered, doctored and saved every month by The Humane Society of New York.

Without us, their fate would be heartbreaking-abandonment, starvation, abuse...and worse. With us, they have a chance. A chance to live...because we do not believe in destroying healthy animals.

A chance for a good home ... because our carefully-screened adoption service is followed up by personal investigation within a month of adoption. A chance for top-quality veterinary care at minimal cost...because our clinic never refuses a sick animal, regardless of owner's ability to pay.

It takes money to give them all a chance.

Money we just don't have, unless you give it.

No government funds, no tax dollars are funnelled our way. We are not affiliated with any other animal shelter or hospital. We are entirely depencient on public and private contributions from people like yourself. How much is their survival worth to you?

$5.00? That will feed and shelter one of our dogs for a week. $10.00? That will insculate and deworm two of our adoptive pets. $35.00? That will spay an adult female cat. Any amount is welcome. So much is needed. Please help. Send in this coupon with whatever (tax-deductible) contribution you can afford. They can't ask. Someone must.
